SEVEN TO FACE TRIAL IN DEATH OF AUTO VICTIM

SOLICITOR ORDERS ISSUE OF WARRANT

CORONER'S INQUEST LASTS WHOLE DAY

State Alleges That Men "Did Conspire to Slay Mrs. Wiggins."

Gastonia, N. C., Sept. 14 (A.P.).—With the coroner's inquest into the death of Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, striker, victim of an anti-Communist mob, only partly completed, seven men were held in bonds of $1,000 each on charges of manslaughter. They were arrested on warrants issued at the request of Solicitor John G. Carpenter.

The inquest started in the Gaston County Courthouse this morning, and was in progress most of the day. Adjournment was taken until next Saturday.

The men arrested were F. T. Morrow, driver of an automobile which collided with a truck in which 21 members of the National Textile Workers Union were fleeing from a mob; Theodore Sims, Lowery Davis and Troy Jones, who were in the car with Morrow; George Lingerfelt, driver of the truck, and I. M. Sossoman, master mechanic of the the Loray cotton mill lat Gastonia, and Will Lunsford, a Loray mill employe.

The warrant charged that the men "Did conspire, confederate and agree together to slay and did slay Ella May Wiggins."

They were released on bonds of 1,000 each signed by J. A. Baugh, general manager of the Loray mill of the Manville-Jenckes Co.

While the inquest was on it had been planned by relatives of Mrs. Wiggins to hold her ufneral from the home of an aunt in the Loray mill village, but two hours before the time set the ceremony was postponed until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

It was stated that the International labor defense had taken charge and would issue a statement later.

The men arrestede today were accused by the solicitor as testimony in the inquest indicated their possible connection with the shooting of Mrs. Wiggins. The first arrested were Morrow and his companions. Then Lingerfelt, who had been arrested at the time of the collision, was ordered held, and finally Sossoman and Lunsford. Witnesses charged that Sossoman and Lunsford came on the scene shortly after Mrs. Wiggins was shot and told men shooting that they might stop.

Twenty-nine witnesses were heard at today's session of the inquest. Four physicians testified to the fact that Mrs. Wiggins met her death from a single bulet wound. A mill superintendent, who was passing at the moment, corroborated in large part the story told by the workers on the truck.

Hobart White, 15, whose arm was broken when some member of the mob clubbed him, and Mrs. Mary Goldsmith Jones told their version of the incident. Mrs. Jones was wounded on the lip. She said she could not swear that she was shot but was positive she was not hurt in the collision.

G. R. Spencer, superintendent of the American mill at Bessemer City, and occupants of the truck all told Coroner J. F. Wallace and his jury that men armed with pump guns apparently tried to halt the strikers when they were dumped out of the wrecked truck. As the strikers fled, Mrs. Wiggins was killed.

Several witnesses declared shots were fired at those who remained ni the truck.

The shooting was the result of an attempt by anticommunists to prevent an advertised meeting in South Gastonia by Communists and members of the National Textile Workers Union, which last April called a strike in the Loray Mills.

Sheriffs Patrolled Area.

Twenty-five heavily armed deputy sheriffs patrolled the section about the place where the meeting was to be held. The victims of the automobile collision and shooting which occurred between Bessemer City and Gastonia had been turned back to the Loray mill village by a mob and when they started back to their homes were followed by a number of cars.

Superintendent Spencer of the American Mills testified that he was passing as the truck ran into the rear of the passenger car. He said he heard a shot as the crash occurred. He stopped his automobile and got out, he testified. As he did

Capital Man Is Made Knight of St. Gregory

Exceptional Honor of Catholic Church Conferred on W. F. Montavon for Activity in Recent Settlement of Mexican Religious Problem.

In the presence of a notable gathering of Catholic dignitaries and lay leaders, knighthood in the Order of St. Gregory the Great was conferred at the direction of Pope Pius yesterday on William F. Montavon, director of the legal department of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, for his activity in the church's negotiations in the recent settlement of Mexico's religious problem.

The exceptional honor of the church formally was conferred on behalf of the Pope by the Most Rev. Pietro Bumasoni-Biondi, archbishop and apostolic delegate of the Catholic Church to the United States, in the home of the delegates at 1611 Biltmore street northwest.

The papal citation, as read by the apostolic delegate, declared that the recognition was given Montavon as a man "outstanding in your active devotion to the cause of religion," and for "rendering with unfailing zeal valuable services to the church and in particular to the apostolic delegation." The honor is one of the highest that can be conferred by the Catholic Church upon a layman.

In presenting the decoration, Dr. Fumasoni-Biondi, upon whose recommendation the Vatican inducted Montavon into the roder, referred to the Washington man as "a Catholic layman devoted to the faith, devoted to your country, of good judgment and always ready to serve."

The Rev. Dr. John J. Burke, general secretary of the Catholic Welfare Conference, read the apostolic brief conferring the decoration and the personal message from the Pope to Montavon.

Messages of congratulations were received from Archbishop Ruiz, now apostolic delegate to Mexico, and Archbishop Pascual Diaz, of Mexico, who spoke particularly of the work of Montavon on behalf of the church in the recent Mexican negotiations in which both clergymen played a conspicuous part.

Among the approximately 150 churchmen and lay leaders in attendance at the ceremonies and the reception following were the Very Rev. George Sauvate, procurator general of the Fathers of the Holy Cross, with headquarters in Rome, Italy; the Right Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of this archdiocese; the Right Rev. James H. Ryan, rector of

M'CLINTOCK ESTATE DISPUTE IS SETTLED

Claimants Agree to Split $1,000,000 Left After Mystery Death.

SHEPHERD TO GET HALF

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Chicago Tribune today said contesting claimants for the $1,000,000 estate of William Nelson McClintock, wealthy young Chicagoan, who died under mysterious circumstances five years ago, had reached an agreement for settlement.

William Darling Shepherd, who was McClintock's guardian and who was acquitted of a charge of slaying his ward by administering typhoid germs, will receive half of the estate and the remainder will be divided among Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancee, and two groups of cousins, from Ottuma, Iowa, and from California, the paper said.

Under the terms of McClintock's will Shepherd received the entire estate, with the exception of an $8,000 annuity for Miss Pope.

McClintock died late in 1924 after Miss Pope had made vain attempts to marry him on his death bed. After his acquittal of responsibility for the death, Shepherd lost his plea to probate the will but won on an appeal. The decision was given after two years.

Early in 1927, the cousins filed suit to break the will, charging it was dictated by Shepherd. A few months later Miss Pope filed suit for a widow's share, alleging Shepherd had contrived to prevent the wedding.

In May of this year, Circuit Judge Philip L. Sullivan ruled that the cousins were legal heirs and Miss Pope entered into an agreement for settlement in the event either group was successful.

The cousins are:

COLLEGE MATES AID IN ROGERS DEFENSE

INSANITY IS CLAIMED

New Braunsfels, Tex., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Tired-eyed and with hair graying from three earys of incessant worry, 27-year-old Otis Rogers, lawyer-husband of Rebecca Bradley Rogers, on trial for the third time for bank robbery, this time has declined more experienced counsel and has staked her liberty on his own legal knowledge and that of two college classmates.

The defense staff which tomorrow continues the presentation of alienists in an effort to prove that Becky was insane when in December, 1926, she robbed the Buda, Texas, Farmers National Bank—they claim with an empty gun—probably is the youngest ever to try a capital case in Texas. Leo Brewster, 28, of Fort Worth, and J. H. Schleyers, 28, of New Braunsfels, friends of Otis and Rebecca when all were students at the nUiversity of Texas only a short time ago, sit side by side in the little courtroom here as they try to shield the 24-year-old girl irom a verdict of guilty which conceivably could bring the death penalty.

Meanwhile, Rebecca, slight, sallow and seemingly utterly bored, reclines in her chai rwith closed eyes or toys with her hat and gloves.

Not until Rebecca, whom the world had not known he had married, was caught up by policemen and charged with orbbery by firearms, did Rogers, thin, austere and melancholy in appearance, fully understand the meaning of pleading against prosecution.

In the university, he was chairman of the men's honor council and dealt out student justice with an iron hand. He barely had begun the practice of his law when it was necessary that he put the oratory which he formerly had used as a

Sally O'Neill's Brother Held On Charges of Studio Theft

Jack Noonan Seized in New York, After Jury in Los Angeles Votes Indictment; Film Star's Relation Denies Crime.

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Jack Noonan, brother of Sally O'Neill and Mollie O'Day, motion picture actresses, was arrested today at the request of Sheriff William Traeger, of Los Angeles, whose telegram said Noonan recently was indicted in Los Angeles on charges of burglary and receiving stolen goods.

The complaint against Noonan was made by Ted Lewis, the orchestra leader, and two indictments were returned against him.

Noonan, who said he was a son of the late Supreme Court Justice Thomas F. Noonan, of New Jersey, denied the charges and blamed his difficulties on an unamed Hollywood actor and studio attache, who, he said, asked him to keep the property he is charged with stealing and which was found in his room. He said he was told it was too late to take the property back to the studio. Subsequently, Noonan said, he learned that his name had been used in selling other property.

The property he was charged with having stolen consisted of fur coats and costumes, Noonan told police.

The arrest was made at the home of Capt. Frank Hay, an aviator, in Hempstead, Long Island, where Noonan was traced by detectives who learned that he recently had been discharged from St. Mark's Hospital.

Noonan carried his right hand in a sling as the result of the amputation of the middle finger. Police said Noonan explained the amputation became necessary because of an infection resulting from a "set-to" with a pugilist over the man insisting on entering a cafe in a Hollywood suburb about three months ago. Noonan said there were three men and three women in the party and he did not want to enter the cafe because of a previous "unpleasant experience" there.

Noonan was the technical director of "The Patent Leather Kid," in which his sister, Mollie O'Day, appeared with Richard Barthelmess.

He said he stopped in Tulsa, Okla., for some time on his trip East and had about decided to surrender when police arrived.

MORE TAX DATA WILL BE ASKED BY DEMOCRATS

Additional List of Firms Will Be Presented to Treasury.

SOME CORPORATIONS SEEN IN BACKGROUND

New Request to Concern Those Not Appearing Openly in Fight.

ROBINSON OUTLINES PLANS FOR ATTACK

Present Method of Handling Tariff Is Unscientific, He Declares.

The Senate Democrats' plan to fight the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill by forcing into the open the earnings of great corporations, which would benefit by the proposed raises in the bill, took on a more comprehensive aspect yesterday, when it was learned that an additional list of corporations is being prepared for submission to the Treasury.

Senator Simmons (Democrat), North Carolina, ranking minority member of the finance committee, has already presented a request for income tax data affecting 200 companies, but the indications given yesterday were that probably as many more names will be added to this list within the week.

By virtue of the Simmons resolution, recently adopted by the Senate, the finance committee is compelled, on request of either the majority or minority members, to obtain income tax data relating to any company which may benefit from the tariff. The Treasury, under the law, is authorized to furnish such data to the committee in confidence. It has been indicated, however, that once the information is in the possession of the committee it will not be long before some of it is aired on the floor of the Senate.

More Companies to Be Listed.

It was learned that the 200 companies already listed are for the most part only those which appeared openly before the House ways and means committee or the Senate finance committee, seeking increases. The list now being prepared will comprise companies which have not appeared openly in the tariff fight, although they stand to win huge profits from proposed upward revisions.

The new list, it is understood, will be composed largely of companies which would benefit from increases in the metals and chemicals schedule.

Some the minority members have pointed out that in some lines of industry that are known to be prosperous, only the small and comparatively unprofitable companies were represented at the hearings. These companies were able to show a lack

St. Elizabeths Patient Found Dead in Woods

Fran McCord, 48-year-old patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital, whose feat in swimming the Potomac River several weeks ago resulted in the revocation of his ground parole, was found dead in the woods just west of the hospital yesterday afternoon.

Four Anacostia youths, J. R. Kagly, T. S. Nichols, J. C. Glenn and G. C. Fox, discovered the body ano notified the police. He was removed to the morgue at the hospital. An autopsy to determine the cause of death will be held today. There were no marks of violence or any other reason to believe that death was caused by anything other than natural causes.

Youth Hurt Badly In Football Game

Boy, 18, Is Thought to Be the First Casualty of 1929 Season.

While playing for the Rainbow Athletic Club against the Alexandria Firemen's team at Alexandria, George Norris, 18 years old, of 1321 Otis place northwest, was knocked unconscious.

He was taken to Alexandria Hospital for first aid, and then to Casualty Hospital after the injuries were found to be more serious than at first thought. Dr. J. Rogers Young, of the hospital staff, reported the player was suffering from concussion, a possible fracture of the right forearm and a sprained right wrist. His condition was reported to be serious early this morning.

The Rainbow Team is composed largely of young men of this city. Norris was brought to the hospital by Ernest Thornburg, of 646 Park road, a substitute player for the Rainbow Team.

Maryland Policeman Thrown From Motorcycle at Sandy Stretch.

Sixteen persons were injured, four seriously, in automobile and motorcycle accidents yesterday and last night in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia. Three women and one man are reported to be hovering between life and death in Capital hospitals.

Four Injured in Collision.

Four persons were injured, one seriously, when an automobile and a truck collided at Massachusetts avenue and Fourth street northwest about 7:30 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Mary Bashoor, 58 years old, of 315 H street northwest, suffered several fractured ribs and probable internal injuries. Her condition was said to be serious at George Washington Hospital, where she was taken with Mrs Lena Bashoor, 25 years old, who was cut on the face and head, and Miss Naifa Bashoor, 21, who suffered a fractured shoulder.

Miss Alice Bashoor, who was suffering from shock, and Edward Abraham, 2 months old, son of Mrs. Laura Abraham, of 303 H street northeast, were taken to Casualty Hospital. The child was only bruised. All of the Bashoors live at the H street address. John A. Madden, 18 years old, of 1112 I street northwest, driver of the truck, was held at the Sixth Precinct Station on a charge of driving without a District driver's permit. Lewis Bashoor was making a left turn off Massachusetts avenue into Fourth street when the vehicles crashed.

Two Injured, Two Escape.

Two persons were injured and two others, one a 2-year-old boy, miraculously escaped injury in a triangular auto crash at Thirty-fourth and Garfield streets northwest.

Col. Thomas Treadwell, 65 years old, of 3432 Macomb street northwest, suffered lacerations on his forehead when his car was overturned in the collision. Mrs. Nellie Matson, Georgetown nurse, of 20 Eastern avenue, Takoma Park, was bruised on the knees. Both were treated by Dr. Herbert Martyn, of 2814 Thirty-fourth street, at the scene.

Gilbert Culver, 4517 Potomac avenue northwest, and his son, Shirley, were thrown from their auto, but neither was injured, the boy landing on top of his father. Mrs. Culver was also in the car.

Car Overturned in Crash.

Col. Treadwell's car, running north on Thirty-fourth street, is said to have been overturned by Culver's auto coming out of Garfield street. The latter car then bounced into C. Matson's vehicle.

Residents of the neighborhood three times petitioned William H. Harland, traffic director, to place a stop sign at the intersection of Garfield and Thirty-fourth street they said yesterday after the accident.

Mrs. Lillie M. Gurns, 45 years old, of 38 K street northeast, suffered a fractured right shoulder when struck at North Capitol and K streets by an automobile driven by C. S. Swart, 22 years old, of 1010

Three Die as Auto Is Driven Off Road

Motorist's Fiancee Falls on Others; Survives Tragedy.

Wichita, Kans., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Three persons were killed and a fourth was injured critically early today when their motor car plunged over an 18-foot embankment 7 miles south of Wichita. The dead:

Arthur Remer, 22; Donald Thornberg, 23, and Miss Dorothy Ballard, 17, all of Wichita. Her hip broken, Miss Billy Barnett, 21, Wichita, walked and crawled half a mile to a farmer's house for aid.

Remer, the driver, had released the steering wheel for a few seconds to help Miss Barnett, his fiancee, put on her coat, when the car left the roadway. Her life probably was saved by the bodies of her companions.

The four young people had attended a dance. Relatives said Miss Barnett and Remer had quarreled and that last night's "date" was their first since they had become reconciled.

Commission to Begin Water Inquiry Today

Consumers Tell Strange Experiences With Varying Bills.

By AUSTIN T. ROGERS.

Speedy results have followed The Post's disclosures of plans of the Water Department to extract an additional $300,000 from Washington taxpayers while admitting its inability to explain the loss of some 8,000,000,000 gallons of water mysteriously missing, and while attempting to conceal the fact that almost 20 per cent of its meters are not working.

Today the District Commissioners will institute a thorough shake-up and investigation of the Water Department with a view to correcting the conditions revealed by The Post. And in the meanwhile communications continue to pour into the offices of The Post from taxpayers who had difficulties with their water bills and who have commended The Post for bringing the situation out into the light of public knowledge.

Water consumers who have complained to the Water Department about apparent discrepancies in their bills relate remarkable experiences.

One consumer whose meter has been inoperative for several years reports that he had complained repeatedly about his bill, which was in excess of $20. His complaints, he declares, had never been acted upon until several months ago, when he called in a plumber who checked the meter and found it badly corroded and clogged, and entirely out of

HOOVER WEEK-ENDS AT MOUNTAIN CAMP

FARM BOARD DISCUSSED

Madison, Va., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Cool autumn weather was nature's contribution today as President Hoover and a party of guests enjoyed what may be the Chief Executive's final visit until next spring to his fishing retreat on the head waters of the Rapidan River.

After a quiet night in the sharp coolness of the mountains, the guests and their hosts spent the day in a variety of diversions—with hiking, horseback riding and horseshoe pitching occupying a large part of the time.

The Chief Executive, however, has not given relaxation full away on the trip, and the party was not far on its way yesterday when he began a series of conferences that continued over into today. Mrs. Hoover left the presidential car son after Washington was left behind and Chairman McNary, of the Senate agriculture committee, and Col. William J. Donovan, former Assistant Attorney General, joined Mr. Hoover.

Senator McNary's committee has summoned members of the farm board for hearings Friday to consider their confirmation and rumblingsof opposition to several, particularly Chairman Legge, have been heard in the Senate. It has ben expected that this situation would be discussed by the President with Mr. McNary during the week-end.

The Chief Executive, as usual, plans to leave his camp early tomorrow morning in time to arrive at the White House soon after the business day opens.

120-FOOT DIVE PUTS MAN IN GALLINGER

DRUNK CHARGE BOOKED

While doing stunts on the railing of the Francis Scott Key Bridge at Georgetown to amuse a crowd of Sunday motorists, James Hall, 26 years old, of 3032 N street northwest, took a dive of 120 feet into the Potomac River about 6 o'clock last night when Policemen approached to put an end to his stunts.

Hall landed on his side in the water and in a few minutes he was rescued by Policeman Charles Birkight, of the Harbor Precinct, and William Reynolds, boat club keeper, who rushed to his aid in a boat. After he had been rolled over a barrel until most of the water and liquor were pumped out of him, he appeared none the worse for his experience.

Rescue Squad No. 1 arrived in time to put the finishing touches on him. Policeman Earl Reynolds, who had started after him on the bridge, was awaiting his revival and immediately had him hauled away in the police patrol to the Seventh Precinct Station, where he was booked on a charge of drunkenness.

Policeman Reynolds said afterward that he had tried to approach the would-be tight rope walker cautiously after he had observed him for several minutes. Hall saw him, however, started to run along the railing, slipped and went overboard.

Hall was later taken to Gallinger Hospital.

Police Seeking Admirer Of Garroted Young Wife

Merchant, Rejected Suitor, Said by Detectives to Have Annoyed Woman Found Choked to Death by Little Son as He Enters Room.

New York, Sept. 15 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Charles Quintieri, 6, put his foot importantly this morning on the shoeshine box which his friend, Tony di Giusto, 13, uses on Sundays.

"A man killed my mother this morning," said Charles, as Tony polished, "Come on up and see her."

Tony dashed up four flights of stairs of the Bronx apartment of Mrs. Julia Quintieri, 24, a milliner; and sure enough, she lay dead on the living-room floor. Her comly face had been battered. A length of butcher's twine, wrapped around her slender throat, had strangled her.

Soon little Charles stood beside his mother's partly dressed body and talked to police, who had been summoned by Tony at 9:45 o'clock. On the basis of the boy's story and of several complaints made recently to police by Mrs. Quintieri that a man was annoying her, detectivs soon were looking for an East 104th street storekeeper, whom thy hoped to find tonight.

Charles stood there beside his dead mother and talked in apparent composure. Then he was taken into the bedroom to finish his statement. When he was to be led out, he suddenly screamed:

"Oh, don't take me in there! She's in there!"

Shrieking, hysterical, in sudden realization of death, Charles was carried out of the apartment, through the fatal room.

The police were confronted with a problem of child psychology which they admitted was beyond their comprehension. After finding his mother's body, Charles had helped himself to $4.10 from her purse and gone down stairs to have his shoes shined. And now he was shrieking in fear. Well, that was a problem they didn't have to solve.

They turned Charles over to his godmother, whose address they kept private, and set out to catch the murderer.

Though Mrs. Quintieri had only recently moved from East 104th street, the neighborhood which has

PROPOSED SESSION SET FOR DECEMBER

LONDON IS LIKELY LOCALE FOR DEBATE

(Associated Press.)

Diplomatic conversations looking toward a conference of the five principal naval powers are expected to begin both here and in London this week.

The present proposal is for a parley by Great Britain, Japan, France, Italy and the United States as early in December as possible. It follows agreement on the basic factors in the American and British navies which caused the breakdown of the tripartite conference in 1927.

The December conference would consider all categories of vessels, including capital ships, aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers and submarines, and by an agreement of the powers signatory to the Washington arms treaty of 1921 would take the place of a conference which President Hoover would have to call under the terms of that treaty in 1931.

Plan to Be Considered.

The exchanges among the five powers, which it is believed here will be started during the coming week, will be the means of determining whether the powers other than Great Britain and the United States are willing to participate in a naval conference, a tentative plan for the matters to be considered at such a parley and the time and place it would meet.

Informal talks have already been going on for some time, both here and in London, between American and British officials and the diplomatic representatives of the other three powers regarding the progress of the naval negotiations between Ambassador Dawes and Prime Minister MacDonald.

Approach Is Uncertain.

The manner of approach to the other three powers regarding the calling of a conference has not been determined upon, but Secretary Stimson, who has been President Hoover's chief adviser in the Anglo-American negotiations, feels that the problem of arranging for a conference should be looked into as soon as possible in order that full preparation for its holding could be had in ample time before the actual meeting.

Too, the acceptance of France and Italy of invitations to the conference must be obtained, and whether they are more ready today to enter such a parley than they were in 1927, when they declined President Coolidge's invitation, is unknown.

The conference would bring up for both nations the whole question of the Mediterranean. At the Washington conference Italy claimed and was granted parity with France in capital ships. Neither country had then nor has since disclosed any intention of building heavily in these types, both accepting a ratio figure of less than two as compared to the British-American-Japanese 5-5-3 without very serious objection.

Cruisers Are Different.

The situation regarding cruisers and submarines, however, is different, and unofficial reports from Paris indicate France's desire for a higher ratio in submarines and cruisers. Parity with France is expected to be Italy's demand, and it is doubtful whether the Paris government would be willing to concede this.

Impression in diplomatic circles tonight, despite reports from abroad, was that the conference would be held in London with a formal call for it issued either by Prime Minister MacDonald or jointly by the prime minister and President Hoover in view of the progress which has been made between the United States and Great Britain in smoothing out their difficulties.

Agreement Announced.

Following announcement last week that an agreement in principle between the United States and Great Britain had been reached, the first table comparing the two fleets on a basis of "standard" tons has been made public by the Navy, showing that Britain holds an advantage of approximately 50,000 tons over this country as compared with a preponderance of 12,964 when the last table was issued.

Great Britain is credited with 1,345,232 tons, a decrease of 21,105 since the last table, while the United States has gross tonnage of 1,293,972 now, a decrease of 59,401 tons."

Under the new figures, American cruiser tonnage, the center of limitation negotiations, is placed at 300,500 tons instead of 305,000, while the British cruiser tonnage increased from 397,300 to 401,791 tons.

MacDonald Will Issue Statement on Debate

London, Sept. 16 (Monday) (A.P.). The morning papers say Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald now is about to take the British public into his confidence on the naval negotiations with the United States and will issue an authoritative statement.

The Daily News learns this is to be done through an informal talk with newspapermen at Downing street today. Such an interview between the premier and press men would be an innovation in England.

Hitherto the British government has kept silence regarding the negotiations and virtually all news published here has come from the United States.

British Unit Ends Rhine Occupation

First Contingent Is Home After Long Period of Service.

London, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The first party of troops from the British army of occupation, returning from the Rhine, reached Victoria station tonight. They were advance groups of the Leicester regiment from Koenigstein, and the Borset regiment from Bad Schwalbach.

They came to prepare for the encampment of their regimenta at Catterick and Portland and numbered about 60 men, fully accountered with "tin hats" and the rest of the paraphernalia of war. They were welcomed home by sweethearts, mothers and wives, and many other persons.

Not all of the soldiers were overjoyed at being back in England. One Tommy said: "Bad Schwalbach is difficult to pronounce, but it is a splendid place on a hill overlooking the village. We had a good time there, although I am not fond of German beer."

BRITISH ARMS OFFER GETS LEAGUE NOTICE

CAPITAL NEWS PLEASING

Geneva, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Delegates to the tenth assembly of the League of Nations returned tonight after enjoying a perfect September day in the mountains or on the lake to consideration of the tasks they face tomorrow in their efforts to promote world peace and an international economic organization.

The excitement in the French press regarding the expected British proposal on disarmament has focused attention on that issue. It is felt in informed British quarters that French apprehension over the terms and consequences of this document are on an exaggerated scale.

The resolution that Lord Cecil will introduce in the disarmament committee this week, it was understood, amounts to little more than notice by the Labor government that the question of land forces must be dealt ultimately in a general conference of the powers on disarmament. It is designed to stimulate progress of the preparatory disarmament commission.

The delegates meanwhile were pleased at news from Washington that the Anglo-American discussions of naval strengths were aproaching successful issue and were hoping that the coming visit of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald would do much good.

Discussion of the proposal for calling a world economic conference, supported by France, Great Britain, Belgium and other delegations, will be followed with great interest when resumed in committee tomorrow.

The idea of a tariff holiday or truce, during which for several years tariffs would not be increased, as a preliminary measure to this conference, has gained wide support, but there are a number of states, like Canada and the Irish Free State, which arfe in special circumstances with regard to tariffs, which constitute a formidable obstacle to unanimity in this move.

DEMOCRATS SEEK MORE TAX FIGURES of prosperity in some cases, but a revision based upon their needs, it has been pointed out, would result in piling huge additional profits upon the already swollen earnings of larger concerns in the same line.

Financing to Be Inquired Into.

Another phase of the question in which the Democrats are interested is the matter of the financing of some of the associations which sent representatives to Washington to ask for increases on the products of particular lines of industry. By working through organizations, the minority members say, the companies in the background have been able to avoid close questioning as to their real financial status.

The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill has made so little progress during the first week devoted to its consideration by the Senate that Senator Watson (Republican), Indiana, the majority leader, is threatening to hold the Senate in session at night in an attempt to expedite action. Watson has not made his threats publicly so far, but during the past day or so he has been spreading the word quietly among other senators.

Democratic leaders in the Senate were busy yesterday mapping out plans for their onslaught on the flexible tariff system. This is expected to take definite form during the coming week. The minority plan, which has the support of Republican insurgents, contemplates the repeal of the flexible provision and the transformation of the tariff commission from an agency of the President into a fact-finding body responsible to Congress alone.

Robinson Outlines Plan.

This plan was outlined yesterday by the Democratic leader, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas.

"The present method of handling the tariff situation," Robinson said, "is not only unscientific but leads to an orgy of chicanery, log rolling and political trading."

Pointing out that when Congress has to deal with an engineering problem it seeks the advice of technical men, Robinson added.

"Why should it not proceed in equally logical course when it comes to a determination of the rates to be imposed on imported products?

"An effort in this direction was the creation of the tariff commission thirteen years ago," he said. "With the enactment of the Fordney-McCumber act of 1922, the effect, if not the purpose, of the tariff commission was altered so as to make that body responsible to the President, who was given the privilege of raising or reducing particular schedules on the findings of the tariff commission to the extent of 50 per cent of the duties that have been determined by Congress. Unfortunately, the flexible tariff provision has turned out to be under recent administrations flexible in one direction only."

Sugar Tariff Barden Is Set at $19,000,000

(Associated Press.)

In answer to a joint demand by farm organizations for retention of the House sugar schedule, the American bottlers of carbonated beverages have cited a study by Dr. Philip G. Wright, of the Institute of Economics, which asserted that the "net" burden of this duty on agriculture in the continental United States was $19,320,000.

Wright's study said also: "If we assume that the number of persons in agricultural pursuits is roughly proportional to the acreage which they occupy, then it would appear that for every five farmers in the United States and its insular possessions who are benefited by the sugar tariff, 995 in the continental United States alone are burdened, leaving out of consideration all other classes of the community, none of whom, except the sugar manufacturers, receive any benefit.

"Specifically, at the present time the growers get about 50 per cent of the increased price caused by the duty," Wright's study said, estimating that the total benefit to both cane and beet growers in the United States alone was $18,816,000—on the basis of the 1.76 per cent duty.

"Our estimate of the burden arising from the duty on sugar was $1.38 per person," he added. "Hence the aggregate burden is $38,437,000. Subtracting the benefit, the net burden become $19,621,000."

WIDOW OF GUNMEN VICTIM GIVES CLEW

Arrest Is Reported Near in Texas Slaying; New Trails Found.

DEATH THEORY ALTERED

Borger, Tex., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Texas rangers investigating the ambush slaying late last week of District Attorney John A. Holmes, said tonight they expected to make an arrest on the strength of a statement of Holmes' widow that she believed she knew who assassinated him.

Capt. Frank Hamer indicated that his men did not intend to apprehend the suspect before tomorrow. He would not reveal the name of the man the widow gave him.

Meanwhile, investigators veered away from the theory of yesterday that a deathbed statement by Roy Harmon, fatally wounded in an alleged bank holdup attempt, which was missing from the district attorney's office might be connected with the killing of Holmes, who was shot to death Friday night as he left the garage at his home.

Wife Sees Slaying.

His wife and mother-in-law turned from the door of the house in time to see him fall dying.

The Holmes statement was claimed to have implicated William J. (Whitey) Walker, asserted desperado in jail at Stinnett, near here, with the slaying of two deputy sheriffs here in 1927. Whitey Walker, Hugh Walker and Ed Bailey, the last two out on bond, are under indictments for the killings.

As far as could be learned the rangers and scores of other officers investigating Holmes' murder did not concentrate today on a search for the missing papers.

Apear in Court.

Among the new angles brought into the case was that revealed in conference between Alex G. Moody, of Amarillo, United States district attorney, and rangers. Holmes was to have appeared Monday in Moody's court against fourteen Borger men and women arrested on liquor charges in a round-up made by rangers here in July. He had conferred just before his death with Moody.

Somewhat ephemeral clews as to the automobiles used by the slayer came from two sources. A Borger resident reported to authorities the license number of an automobile seen to pass the Holmes housce several times on the day of the murder. Another report was to the effect that the machine which carried the killer had been borrowed in Pampa.

Meanwhile, District Judge E. J. Pickens, after a conference with District Attorneys Clifford Brawley, of Pampa, and Edward W. Thomerson, of Amarillo, announced that a special grand jury would not be called unless the rangers advised such a move.

Vast Timber Tract Blackened by Fire

Portland, Oreg., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Forest fires raging through the Pacific Northwest this year have blackened morethan 205,000 acres of national timber lands and many conflagrations battled by thousands of men are still uncontrolled. Losses in national forests this year have been estimated at 205,443 acres, nearly ten times greater than last year's fire toll, when 23,443 acres weer burned over.

Two disastrous fires were responsible for more than half of this year's damage. Both were in Washington State. More than 98,000 acres were destroyed in the Colville National Forest before yeary bands of fighters could bring the Dollar Mountain blaze under control. The Chilean National Forest suffered the next heaviest loss, 88,866 acres of timber having been destroyed there, principally by the Remmel Lake fire.

So far in Oregon no national forest has suffered a loss more than 1,000 acres. Fires in this State, however, have done greatest damage in State forests and privately owned land.

Held Victim of Pellegra.

Defense testimony that Mrs. Rogers is a victim of pellegra in addition to dementia praecox, had not served to brighten the outlook of the husband, who contracted first pneumonia and then tuberculosis in rushing throughout a wintry day and night from Amarillo to Austin when she was arrested.

The defendant was recognied as a brilliant student at the university and held several responsible positions while she studied at Austin. At the time of the bank robbery, she was a stenographer in the office of Gov. Dan Moody. She acquired an M. A. degree in her school work.

WAGGONER LODGED IN CHEYENNE JAIL

MAY WAIVE EXTRADITION

Cheyenne, Wyo., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Heavily shackeled, C. D. Waggoner, president of the Bank of Telluride, Telluride, Colo., arrived in Cheyenne today in the custody of Earl School, Deputy U. S. Marshal, and was immediately placed in a cell in the Laramie County jail.

Soon after his arrival here Waggoner conferred in his cell with his attorney, S. D. Crump, of Denver. The bank president is charged with obtaining $500,000 from six New York banks by the use of faked telegraphic orders. Crump said after his talk with his client that he would soon announce whether Waggoner would resist removal to New York for trial.

Crump said he was awaiting the return to Cheyenne of A. D. Walton, U. S. attorney, who is out of the city on business and is expected to return later today. Waggoner's attorney said after confering with Walton he could state definitely his client's position on his removal to New York where he is facing Federal charges of using the mails in the furtherance of a scheme to defraud.

In conversation with his wife and son, Delos Waggoner, and Waggoner's brother-in-law and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Todd, of Olathe, Kans., the bank president indicated he was not contemplating contesting the removal order. Mrs. Waggoner discussed with her husband and his attorney whether she should go to New York if her husband was taken there.

In view of the fact that she has not been subpoenaed by the Government, as a witness in the case, the conversation centered on whether authorities would pay her transportation to New York.

Authorities here said they did not anticipate a contest from Waggoner on the removal order. They contended any opposition on his part would be futile and would merely delay settlement of the case.

LaGuardia Debate Sought by Pastor

Rev. T. E. Boorde Would Argue Prohibition With New Yorker.

The Rev. Thomas E. Boorde, of 431 Cedar street northwest, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church, Tenth and N streets northwest, announced from his pulpit last night that he would be glad to accept the challenge which Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York, made to Dr. Clarence True Wilson, of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Temperance, concerning a debate on prohibition.

The specific question which Representative LaGuardia proposed for the debate was, "Resolved, That prohibition is morally sound, economically safe and beneficial; therefore, it ought to be and can be enforced." Dr. Wilson declined to meet the representative on the question.

"I will be glad to debate Representative LaGuardia on this subject," Dr. Boord told his congregation at last night's services.

Five in Auto Flee.

A wheel on the other car was torn off in the crash, but the driver and the four occupants of the machine fled on foot before Murray could ascertain their names.

In the other accident, a car driven by Mary Agnes Brown, of 4606 Fifteenth street northwest, who was en route to New York, was struck by a machine said to have been driven by Robert Mathews, of Waterloo, Md., which came onto the boulevard from a side road. English Catholics Fete Political Emancipation

Papal Colors Float From Westminster Cathedral as 30,000 Worshipers Hear Vatican Greeting on Occasion of 100th Observance of Freedom.

London, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The papal colors of yellow and white rippled in the breeze over Westminster Cathedral today while 30,000 Roman Catholics celebrated a century of their political emancipation in England.

A pontifical high mass was celebrated in the grounds of the cathedral by Archbishop Williams, of Birmingham. Cardinal Bourne, archbishop and metropolitan of Westminster, in flowing robes of scarlet, presided at the throne. Assisting were six archbishops, while the rest of the Roman Catholic hierarchy of England were grouped in a half circle around the out-of-doors altar.

Loud speakers and amplifiers carried the service to the outskirts of the huge crowd of worshippers. The choir sang from a cathedral room in full view of the worshippers into the loud speakers.

Before the mass 350 robed clergy led 10,000 persons from St. George's Cathedral in Southwark to Westminster. Following the holy cross were black-robed Benedictines, Carmelites with sandaled feet, Cistercians, Black Friars and other orders of the church.

After the mass Cardinal Bourne read a message from Pope Pius XI, which said: "The august pontiff has most gratefully received expressions of filial homage and devotion which you addressed to him, the common father of all, on the occasion of the assembly gathered at Westminster to commemorate publicly the hundred years of your rewon religious freedom. He prays that day by day there may be fresh progress in the Catholic cause and bestows upon you all his fatherly blessing." The message was signed by Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state.

Powder Puffs on Sale In Lumberjack Camp

A trained forester whose experience in logging camps brings to mind the primitive conditions that years ago characterized the habitations of the lumberjack got a real shock on a recent visit to two of the largest camps on the West Coast.

"In one I went into the wanigan. Instead of a neat and tasty stock of woolen socks and chewing tobacco, I found the shelves adorned with fancy soap, face lotion, lip salve and other cosmetics. The table in the dining room was waited on by beautiful ladies dressed in the latest style.

"At the other camp, getting back with the logging superintendent a little late for the regular dinner, the cook got us up a special lunch whose piece de resistance was California head lettuce and shrimp salad with Thousand Island dressing. While we toyed with our forks—no knives being furnished—the cook sat with us, and the conversation was confined to golf. The cook was just back from two weeks' special vacation, which he spent taking lessons from a professional to perfect his iron shots."

DEATH TO BE ASKED IN TORCH SLAYING

Peacox Goes on Trial Today, Charged With Choking Wife to Death.

TALESMEN ARE CALLED

White Plains, N. Y., Sept. 15 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—Earl Francis Peacox, the brisk and talkative young radio mechanician who confessed to strangling his wife and burning her body last April, will go on trial for first degree murder tomorrow morning before Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins and a "blue ribbon" jury in White Plains.

Unusual activity has preceded the opening of the trial in the Westchester County Courthouse. Fourteen telegraph wires and several special telephone wires have been installed in the juryroom, adjoining the court, and the jury will do its deliberating elsewhere, if the case proceeds to a conclusion.

Talesmen are Called.

Deputy sheriffs have been scouring Westchester for the past week to serve summons on a special panel of 150 talesmen. They reached 136, and ever since then court officials have been swamped with telephone calls from talesmen asking to be excused. These will be referred to Justice Tompkins at the opening of trial.

The usual courthouse opinion has been busy forecasting the probable outcome of the case. District Attorney Frank H. Coyne will ask the death penalty for Peacox, but lawyers and court attaches believe a verdict of second degree murder is the most the State can obtain. They point out that even Peacox's supposed confession does not indicate premeditation.

Defense Kept Secret.

Sidney A. Syme, defense attorney, has given no recent hints of what he will endeavor to prove. Soon after the tragedy, Syme disclosed that he was considering both an insanity defense and the contention that Peacox killed his wife in "self-defense." He described the glib radio lecturer as a paranoiac.

Last summer Syme appealed to the supreme court at White Plains for a change of venue, arguing that Westchester County newspapers had prejudiced the case of his client. The motion was denied by Justice Bleakley.

SEVEN FACE CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

so he saw men running across a cotton field. Three or four men, he said, standing near a house identified as "the gamble house," were shooting at the fleeing people, with rifles. He saw the dead woman.

Spencer said the people in the truck told him they had been halted in Gastonia after coming from Bessemer City and were returning to Bessemer City after men in automobiles had ordered them to leave. He said that the people told him that as the crash occurred a shot was heard. Mrs. Wiggins screamed: "Oh, Lord, I'm shot." Charlie Shope and Roy Carpenter carried Mrs. Wiggins to a house but she was dead.

Man's Arm Broken.

As the men from the truck ran away the armed men ordered all they could reach to hold up their hands. Hobart White testified that when he jumped off the truck he was struck with a blackjack and his arm broken. He ran away.

Charlie Shope said that the strikers were unarmed. "When we made our plans to go to the Communist meeting," he said, "some one suggested that we had better arm ourselves, but we decided not to."

Shope said they were halted at the Loray Mill in Gastonia en route to the South Gastonia meeting by "some men." They were told to return to their homes and started to do so.

Men in Car Seen.

En route from Gastonia to Bessemer City, men an automobiles followed.

At a place where the highway rises to cross the railway tracks over an overhead bridge, an automobile identified as belonging to F. T. Morrow passed. Shope said this automobile looked as though it were going to stop but the truck was unable to halt quickly enough. There was a crash, the automobile went into a nearby field and the truck followed it.

"Everybody in the truck was falling," said Shope, "when 'spang,' 'spang' went a gun and Mrs. Wiggins screamed 'Lord, they've killed me,' and fell over."

One Had Blackjack.

There were men with guns and one had a blackjack. Shope did not see the actual shooting. It was his theory, however, that the bullet that killed Mrs. Wiggins came from a light car that passed at the time of the collision.

The estimony that resulted in the arrest of Sossoman was given by W. O. Bradley, who said he had hopped onto the truck in Gastonia. He said he saw Sossoman come up and say, "Boys, don't shoot any more." The shooting then stopped. This same witness said he saw Morrow standing beside his wrecked automobile, gun in hand.

Morrow, called to the witness stand, testified that he did nor hear any shooting and did not know the woman was shot until after returning to Gastonia. He said he did not see any armed men. The men with him, likewise, were ignorant of the armed men and the shooting, they testified.

Truck Driver Struck.

George Lingerfelt, driver of the truck, testified that when the truck and the passenger collided there was a "fuss that sounded like a gun." The glass in the rear of the driver's seat broke just as the noise was heard. The windshield, however, was not broken.

Lingerfelt said he was struck by one of the men in the automobile immediately after the accident.

None of the men who met the Bessemer City strikers telling them to leave Gastonia at once, could be identified. Several witnesses identified a small boy but asserted that he said nothing.

Hat Has Bullet Hole.

J. Livingston Baumgardner, told the coroners jury that at the time of the crash one of the armed men shouted:

"Kill the ——. Don't let a one of them live."

Willard Sellers, a striker, exhibited a hat with a bullet hole in it which he said was caused by a shot fired at him as he fled from the truck. Sellars asserted that the shooting came from both the front and rear of the truck. Sellars said he was struck with a blackjack.

ROUMANIA PATRIARCH FEARED NEAR DEATH

Probability Seen He Will Not Be Able to Resume Cares of Government.

SPECULATION IS RIFE

Bucharest, Roumania, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Miron Cristea, patriarch of Roumania and regent, was believed tonight to have little chance of recovery from his present serious illness. His physicians have found that he suffers from leucocythemia (a blood disease), with a probability also of cancer.

The patriarch has been living for the past several months in a country house amid the mountains and forests of Dragoslavele, which was presented to him by the population of the Muscel district. He was born in 1867 in Toplitea, Transylvania, the son of a farmer. He became bishop of Karansebesch in 1910, became archbishop in 1919, and in 1925 was nominated as first patriarch of the Roumanian Orthodox Church. On the death of King Ferdinand he was chosen as a member of the regency council, on which he now serves with Prince Nicholas and former Chief Justice George Buzdugan.

The probability that the patriarch will be unable to exercise again cares of state has led to considerable speculation as to his successor on the regency. The party of Juliu Maniu was said to favor St. Ciceo Pop, speaker of the lower house. The name of Dowager Queen Marie has been mentioned, but it is more generally suggested that if a member of the royal family is chosen it will be the present exile, Prince Carol, father of young King Michael.

Smoke-Screen Rum Automobile Seized

One Man Is Arrested, but Alleged Operator of Car Escapes.

Answering a tip that a booze car was wrecked near Chevy Chase Lake, Lieut. LeRoy Rogers, of the Bethesda substation of the Maryland State police, early yesterday morning found 20 cases of alleged corn liquor in the automobile which smashed into a telephone pole. While loading the liquor into the police car, Rogers saw a colored man limping down the road. When stopped and questioned, the man gave his name and address as Edward Hansboro, of 1304 Corcoran street northwest.

Rogers arrested the negro and took him to Rockville, where he is being held on charges of illegal possession and attempting to sell contraband liquor. A white man, who escaped, is said to have owned the car and its cargo.

The machine was equipped with smoke screen apparatus, and it is believed the car was fleeing from prohibition officers when it was wrecked. Several persons near Chevy Chase Lake reported they saw a touring car fleeing from a sedan, after releasing a smoke screen about midnight Saturday night.

Heart Attack Proves Fatal to 71-Year-Old Man

A victim of heart trouble for over two years, Maurice Flynn, 71 years old, 922 North Carolina avenue southeast, was fatally stricken by a recurrence of the trouble last night.

TWO MEN CHARGED IN BOSTON MURDER

Prisoners Surrender on Hearing Rheinstein Accusations.

ALIBIS WILL BE OFFERED

Boston, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—District Attorney William J. Foley in the early hours today took into the hands of his department the investigation of the slaying of Samuel Rheinstein, alleged New York racketeer, and soon afterward two men were locked up, charged with murder.

They are William F. O'Donnell and Michael Rocco, the latter known to police and the underworld as "Mickey the Wise Guy." Both were tried and acquitted a year ago on a charge of murdering John J. Donovan, of South Boston, as a result of a gang feud, and, more recently, Rocco was questioned by police in the search for the slayer of Frank Marlow, New York gangster.

Rheinstein was shot to death early yesterday morning in a corridor of the Hotel Huntington as he was returning to his room. A young woman, who had been living at the hotel with Rheinstein as his wife since July, but whom the police say is Miss Margaret Wheeler, of Baltimore, arrived at the scene a few minutes later. She said she had been making purchases at a drug store.

It was discovered that two men, who had registered at the hotel under the names of John Russ and Alfred J. Stone, of Providence, R. I., and had asked to be assigned a room next to that occupied by Rheinstein, apparently had fled the hotel.

Police charge that O'Connell and Rocco are the men who occupied the room under the names of Russ and Stone. The young woman was held on a statutory charge.

First O'Donnell and then Rocco surrendered to the police when they learned that they were being sought for questioning. Both denied implication in the slaying and said they could prove satisfactory alibis.

Cassell, Prussia, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The nearby village of Edingen instead of far away Japan proved the goal of one of the carrier pigeons released from the Graf Zeppelin during the flight around the world. The pigeon arrived at Edingen exhausted and died despite the most careful attention given it.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

SENATOR EDWIN S. BROUSSARD, of Louisiana, intends to force a vote during the tariff fight on a proposal to levy full tariff duties on all Philippine products brought into the United States, but to rebate the full amount of the taxes so collected to the Philippine treasury.

"Of course, this plan is only intended to apply until we give the islands their independence," said Senator Broussard in explaining his proposal. He believes there is considerable sentiment for his idea, and that there is a fair chance of its adoption.

Actually he is rather optimistic about this. Investigation does not show that there is much probability of it being adopted, at least at this session. But the mere proposal of the plan, and the fact that it is bound to lead to some discussion on the Senate floor, is of extraordinary interest in view of the underlying situation.

The effect of his proposal, of course, would be to give full protection, equal to that given against any foreign country, to all domestic products with which Philippine importations compete. Foremost among these, in the mind of Senator Broussard, is sugar. Louisiana wants a high duty on sugar. It has for many years. For a long time it was the only State in the Union in which cane sugar was produced commercially. Florida has now joined her on this.

* * * *

BUT his proposal, were it likely to be adopted, would appeal just as strongly to the beet sugar producers. It would appeal to every American who has invested his money in Cuba, and there is a total of one billion and a quarter of American money in that island. It would appeal to the Hawaiians, and it would be sweet music to the Porto Ricans.

It comes on the heels of a suggestion on which the domestic and Cuban sugar producers have been conferring looking to the placing of a differential against Philippine sugar equal to the increase in the duty on Cuban sugar. There has been no agreement on this mainly because the sugar men, both domestic and Cuban, have not thought they could muster enough strength in Congress to do anything with respect to Philippine sugar. They lost heart on this hope, which was strong last winter, when Secretary of State Stimson went before the house ways and means committee and denounced the plan to limit the amount of Philippine sugar which could be brought in.

* * * *

AT the present moment the sugar men are even less optimistic about the Broussard proposal but there may be some interesting developments when the Louisiana senator forces a roll call. For not only is there interest in checking free competition from the Philippines among the sugar men, but there is interest also among the vegetable oil producers, which includes the peanut growers, the cotton planters—cottonseed oil being directly involved—the soy bean farmers and many others. There is also an appeal to the tobacco growers in the idea. Philippine tobacco, of course, coming in free now just as other products do.

Mr. Broussard takes a very broad view of the whole situation, insisting that he is not only thinking of protecting domestic sugar and vegetable oil producers. His point is that it is a moral wrong, in view of the frequently expressed promise of ultimate independence to the islands, to continue and encourage an economic system which will ultimately make it financially impossible for the Filipinos to take their freedom even if it were offered.

He thinks the amount of money which would be poured into the Philippine treasury if his plan should be adopted would help enormously in the education and development of the Filipinos, and would hasten the day on which they would be fitted for self-government. Porto Rico, he points out, now uses in her local treasury the tariff duties and other federal taxes collected there, which forms a precedent for special privilege to the island possessions.

* * * *

BUT the main point of his argument is that it is unfair to continue a system under which the islands bend all their resources to conform to an economic system which he believes will not be continued, for he believes that the islands will ultimately be given their independence, after which of course they will no longer have the free market in the United States which they now enjoy.

The Broussard amendment will probably not be adopted at this session of Congress, but it will start the domestic and Cuban producers thinking, and interest the domestic vegetable oil producers, and is apt to develop into a real battle in the next Congress.

Son Born to Noted English Beauty

Lady Diana Duff Cooper, Seen in "The Miracle," Becomes Mother.

London, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Lady Diana Duff Cooper, noted beauty and sister of the Duke of Rutland, today gave birth to a son. She is the wife of Alfred Duff Cooper. Lady Diana is a woman of many accomplishments, being well known as a society hostess, traveler, patroness of the arts, and as an actress.

Viscount Castle Rosse once paid her the compliment of saying, "I think Lady Diana is the only beautiful woman I ever met who was really unconscious of her loveliness."

Barmaid Takes Pastor's Place in English Puplit

Banbury, England, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Miss Vanney Hancock Cashmore, 26, who earns her living weekdays dispensing beer and whisky in her capacity as barmaid at Marlborough Arms, almost in the shadow of the famous Banbury Cross, today occupied the pulpit at the Banbury Unitarian Church in the place of the vacationing minister.

After the services she described her experience as "most interesting." At the same time she confided "it always has been my ambition to be a preacher."

DEFENSE OUTLINED FOR MRS. PANTAGES

STATE'S CASE IS CLOSED

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 15 (A.P.) Drama seemed ready today to usurp the witness stand at the trial here of Mrs. Lois Pantages, wife of the multimillionaire vaudeville magnate. She has been accused in a second degree murder complaint of the death of Juro Rokumoto, Japanese gardener, in an automobile collision June 16.

The State closed its case last week with a parade of witnesses who testified Rokumoto died from injuries received in the crash. Some of them told the court Mrs. Pantages was intoxicated when she swerved her car into that driven by the Japanese.

Sensational developments have been promised for tomorrow by the defense, with a list of twenty witnesses summoned to appear. Max Steuer, New York criminal lawyer, who heads the defense, intimated that among defense witnesses will be physicians who will say the Japanese died from an anaesthetic administered during an operation.

Eleven defense witnesses already have testified Mrs. Pantages was sober and that an automobile unmentioned in prosecution testimony forced her to the left-hand side of the street before Rokumoto's car.

The scene was climaxed during cross-examination of Phillip Esterly, a chauffeur, who said not only had another machine forced Mrs. Pantages to the wrong side of the street, but that Rokumoto had turned directly into her path without signaling.

Esterly admitted he had told his story to Alexander T. Pantages, the woman's husband, and had not supplied his information to the district attorney's office.

lately erupted in gang murders there seemed little reason to suspect that this was anything but a crime of passion. In fact, a bottle of aromatic spirits of amonia, on which were fingerprints, lay beside the body, mute hint that the killer had momentarily repented and tried to revive the woman. Possibly this was after he had beaten her face, and before he had tightened around her throat the twine which caused her death.

Husband in Colorado.

The detectives soon learned that Mrs. Quintieri's husband, from whom she was separated, was in Colorado. That disposed of little Charles' first confused words about "Father," and concentrated the detectives' attention on a man with whom the mother had quarreled and whom she had told to stay away from her home in 104th street. She had a new friend.

Just what Charles told police was not divulged, though it was indicated that he heard sounds of violence while he was still in bed, and later he went out and found his mother on the floor.

Murder Hour Fixed.

But this did not seem to agree with other known facts. It was estimated that the woman had been dead about an hour when found. This placed the murder after 8 o'clock. But Mrs. Angelina Napolitana, superintendent of the house, says she saw Charles playing on the stairs, rather noisily, about 7 o'clock.

"Why don't you go in with your mother, where you belong?" she said rather testily.

"I don't want to," Charles replied, according to her story.

Admitted Through Door.

Whether Charles was sent out when Mrs. Quintieri met her assailant, or whether the child was abed when his mother died, it appears that the man was admitted through the door of her three-room apartment, which was fitted out in chintzy fashion somewhat more comfortably than would be expected in the house.

District Attorney McGeehan, Deputy Chief Inspector Mulrooney and other officials questioned a number of persons at the Bronx Park station this afternoon, but did not reveal their names or what they had to say.

The neighbors last saw Mrs. Quintieri alive late Saturday night. At 11:15 p. m. she went with Charles to Frank Novelli, who keeps a shop at the foot of the stairs, and paid back a dollar which she had borrowed until payday. During the days, when she went to work in a Milliner's shop, she had been leaving Charles at the Mount Carmel day nursery, but she was not satisfied with this arrangement.

"Tomorrow morning," she said, "I am going to take him to a place over in New Jersey where they will take good care of him."

Seven Hurt as Socialists Attack Australian Meet

Wels, Upper Austria, Sept. 15 (A.P.) Several persons were injured today when Socialists, who objected to singing of the "Deutschlandlied," attempted to break up a meeting of 6,000 members of the Austrian Frontkaempfer.

About 2,000 members of the Steel Helmet organization had arrived here from Germany last night to join in the Austrian meeting.

West Mexican Coast Ravaged by Storm

Mexico City, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Press dispatches today from the Central Pacific Coast towns said that a hurricane had done great damage along the coast.

Waves had been driven into the town of Zihuatanejo in the State of Guerrero, inundating houses and destroying roads and communications in that vicinity. No casualties were reported.

Mexican Border Bribe Offer Charged by Mayor

San Diego, Calif., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—That representatives of the "underworld" here had endeavored to secure his influence in having the Mexican border kept open 24 hours a day and had intimated it would be "worth his while" to the extent of $50,000, was the charge made in a statement today by Mayor Harry C. Clark.

The $50,000 intimation, Clark declared, came during efforts to induce him to send a telegram to President Herbert Hoover advocating an open border. Mayor Clark said the attempted bribery was made in such a roundabount way that it would have been useless to secure warrants for the men involved.

U. S. Will Investigate Rum Witness' Death

Oklahoma City, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—A Government investigation of the death of Mrs. Sadie Webster, 21-year-old Indian, who was to have been a material witness in cases involving alleged conspiracy to violate the prohibition law in Pottawatomie County, has been ordered, it was learned here today.

Mrs. Webster was shot to death Thursday near Hoover, Okla. She was at the home of Pete Kennedy, 27 years old, who has told county officers of Pottawatomie County that she shot herself. Kennedy, Pete Weaver, 29; Alma Chappel, 22, and Berdina Bone, 22, have been taken into custody and held at Tecumseh for questioning by the county attorney.

Vita-Minutes

. . . a new element in advertising

Only the morning hours have Vita-Minutes—minutes when minds refreshed by sleep are at their best; ready to act!

Answers to problems that worried you yesterday "come to you" when you wake. Your mind leaps to tackle things it shied at last night. You make buying decisions. You think faster—and to more purpose. That's why you like to say, sometimes, that you'll "sleep over" a question.

The Morning Post, both text and advertisements, is better read for being read during the hours that are full of Vita-Minutes. No other time of day brings such alertness to a printed page as it gets when read in the early-morning hours.

So it is natural that the advertiser should profit by putting his message before buyers at the time when their minds work most readily, easily, eagerly. He gets a better hearing then; his words are more quickly, more justly, weighed. Buying decisions are made during the Vita-Minutes.

More than 75,000 Posts are bought during the Vita-Minute hours every week-day morning. The publishers know, and the advertiser may know, just where these Posts go—into what kind of hands they are put. For one thing, they go into the homes of those people in Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia who do most of the buying in retail stores.

Never forget The Post's thorough coverage of its market during the Vita-Minutes, nor its strong and vigorous buying influence among its readers in Washington and surrounding territory.

Man Is Arrested In Taxi Robbery

Visitor Tells Police That $540 Was Taken From Him.

One of two men, who are said by police to have robbed Orth Talbert, of Weston, W. Va., of $540 in a taxicab near Union Station last Friday, was arrested by police of the Sixth Precinct yesterday.

Richard Dickerson, the arrested man, whose address has not been learned, is being held at the Sixth Precinct on a charge of investigation. Identity of the man, who is reported to have been with Dickerson at the time, has been obtained by police.

Talbert told police that Dickerson and the other man with whom he had made a brief acquaintance, invited him to take a taxi ride Friday afternoon. Talbert said that he had just come to Washington on a visit and had a large sum of money with him. He expressed belief that the two men were aware of this. While riding in the taxi, Talbert said, one of the men held him helpless while the other robbed him.

DISTRICT COMMISSION TO BEGIN WATER INVESTIGATION TODAY

service. Armed with that report, the taxpayer complained once more to the Water Department, refusing to pay his 1929 bill until a satisfactory adjustment was made.

The Water Department took out the meter for testing, and reinstalled another meter, but not until last Saturday, after The Post had made its disclosure of the fact that almost 14,000 District meters are defective, was the consumers able to get any report from the department. Now, however, he has been advised that his actual consumption of water as shown by meter is at a rate of less than $7 per year.

The most common complaint being made by consumers to The Post deals with their inability to get any report from the Water Department when an accurate metering shows that their water bills should call for substantially less than the "estimated" charges made during the years when their meters were not operating.

When these "estimated" charges—shown on bills under the guise of actual metered consumption, but based upon nothing more definite or accurate than the guesswork of the clerk who handled the account in the Water Department—have been in excess of the charge that should have been made under correct metering, consumers declare that they have found it practically impossible to get the department to advise them as to the indications shown by meter readings.

But other consumers who have complained to the Water Department of bills which appeared excessive but which, metering showed to be substantially correct, inform The Post that the department has been extremely prompt in notifying them that they must pay in full as billed, and in threatening to cut off the supply unless payment is made at once.

Very Prompt on Under Charges.

The department appears to be particularly prompt in notifying complaining consumers when, as quite frequently happens, an actual check shows that instead of being overcharged, the consumer has actually been using more water than the "estimated" bill called for.

The presumable reason for this situation is that when metering shows that the taxpayer is using less water than charged in the estimates by which bills are computed when meters go wrong, the result involves a decrease in the revenues of the Water Department, which is anxious to make a showing as a self-supporting government division, and is therefore reticent in admitting anything which would mean a curtailment of its income.

But, on the other hand, when the estimate is proved to be approximately correct, or lower than actual consumption, the Water Department is thus provided with an opportunity to increase its receipts and makes every effort to get the sum entered up in its collection ledgers at the earliest possible moment.

A surprisingly large number of consumers apparently have gone on for years without knowing that their meters were on functioning, it now appears from revelations made by such taxpayers to The Post.

Blamed Selves at First.

These residents of the Capital have been aware that their water bills seemed high, but attributed that fact to their own wastage of water, rather to the possibility that they might be being charged an estimated figur having no bearing upon the amount of water actually used.

"I thought my bill was high because I figured Junior must have been playing with the hose or sailing boats in the bathtub," was the way one taxpayer explained his failure to check up on his water bills until The Post called attention to the way the defective-meter situation is being handled. He has since taken th matter up with the Water Department, which has promised to make an early test of his meter.

Another consumr discloses a different experience with his water bill. For several years, he reports, he paid the minimum water rate, which, prior to July 1, 1926, was $5.65. When the minimum meter rate was increased to ly, but each year thereafter his bills $6.36, his bill was adjusted according-showed sharp increases, until an additional increase of more than $4 in his last bill brought his 1929 charge to more than double the minimum charge.

Finds Meter Readings Missing.

In previous years he had accepted the increases without question, assuming that they must represent rate increases which he might have overlooked in his perusals of the newspapers. But when his 1929 bill jumped to more than 13, he reports, he decided to investigate, and took the matter up with the Water Department. In looking over previous bills he noticed that whereas the earlier bills showed apparent meter readings against which the amount of the bill was computed, no such readings have appeared on the bills for the last few years.

Getting no action on his complaint from the Water Department, he told The Post yesterday he had a private inspection made of his meter, which revealed that the instrument was completely inoperative. He complained of that fact to the Water Department last July, but, although the department later took out his meter for testing and repair, he has thus far been unable, he says, to get any report from the department. It is his assumption, after reading The Post's water articles, that in his case the Water Department not only "estimated" his annual consumption during several years when the department knew that his meter was defective, but contrived those "estimates" so that they would show a substantial increase in his water bill each year.

Action Is Expected.

Much is expected to happen after the District Commissioners start to check up on the water situation today. For one thing, hte Commissioners apparently are none too friendly to the demands of the Water Department for an increase of 30 per cent in rates.

Having announced definitely that no consideration will be given to the proposed increase until a thorough study of The Post's revelations has been made, the Commissioners are not considered likely to grant the raise after their survey shows them at first hand that one-fifth of the meters installed and maintained by the District Water Department are defective and that this condition has been developing without correction since early in the present decade.

Principally as a result of the fact that 13,936 meters are not registering correctly, there is an admitted loss of almost 9,000,000,000 gallons of water annually, or one-third of the total consumption, including 13,000,000,000 gallons used free of charge by the District and Federal Governments.

Endeavoring to conceal the fact of these 13,936 defective meters, the water department insists, in its annual report, that it has no idea what has happened to all that missing water, which is three times as large as the 10 per cent which is considered normal wastage through leaks and other factors involving loss.

Wastage Is Total Loss.

This enormous wastage represents a total loss to the District water fund. If the loss were cut to the maximum 10 per cent and payment received for the balance at the current meter-excess rate of 6 cents per 100 cubic feet, or 750 gallons, the result would be an increase of more than $500,000 annually in the revenues of the District water department, almost identical with the 30 per cent rate increase which the water department now proposes as a substitute for efficient management.

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 15.—Riding a pony from Amarillo, Tex., to Washington, where he is to see President Hoover, Boyd Jones, 15, arrived in Cumberland last evening. He left this morning on his last five days of a ten weeks' trip.

Looking even younger than his years, Boyd is carrying an invitation to President Hoover to attend the Tri-State Fair in Amarillo and a book written by Gene Howe, editor of the Amarillo Globe, to be presented to the President. He wears a regular cowboy suit and attracted large crowds of youngsters who were further intrigued by a number of tricks performed by "Molly" the pony.

The trip was started July 5, and an average of 25 miles daily has been made. Arrival in Washington is scheduled Thursday. Boyd carries a book in which autographs of governors and mayors in many States appear.

Brother of Convicted Patrolman Discharged

W. Crowder, has been dismissed from the police department for good of the service.

Three witnesses testified that Patrolman Gilliam was with his brother in Fairview Heights when the detective advised C. G. Roach to leave the city because of his knowledge of the hit-and-run case, but he denied this. R. Emmet Casey was convicted Friday and given two years in connection with running away from the scene of the death of Mrs. Crowder.

"SUSPENDING THE LAW."

The interdepartmental committee appointed by President Hoover to consider ocean mail contracts recommends that all pending bids for contracts be deferred until such time as Congress has amended the act of 1928 so as to make clear whether preference shall be given companies purchasing vessels from the Shipping Board, or whether such contracts must go to the lowest responsible bidder, regardless of present or previous ownership. The recommendation, if followed, will serve, in effect, to nullify the shipping act of 1928 so far as it has to do with the encouragement of the merchant marine through mail contracts.

The merchant marine controversy has been moving steadily toward the present crisis. Following enactment of the act of 1928, the Shipping Board undertook to dispose of the lines that remained in its possession, and until the middle of the summer the disposal program went forward expeditiously. Since July, however, first one purchaser and then another has become involved in a controversy regarding its right to an ocean mail contract, and last week the Tampa Interoceanic Steamship Corporation announced that it would be unable to go through with a contract for the purchase of the Gulf-West Mediterranean Steamship Line, signed three months ago, unless it were given a mail contract, as Congress had provided. In the meantime, a controversy had been precipitated as to whether the Mississippi Shipping Co., purchaser of a Shipping Board Line, or the Munson Line, an old-established company, should be given a contract for the carriage of mail to ports on the east coast of South America. These two episodes led directly to the recommendation of the interdepartmental committee.

The Mississippi Co. offered to carry the mails for $2.50 per pound and the Munson Co. offered to carry them, in similar vessels, for $2 per pound. The act of 1928 provides: "Each contract for the carrying of mails shall be awarded to the lowest bidder, who, in the judgment of the Postmaster General, possesses such qualifications as to insure proper performance of the service." Both the Mississippi Co. and the Munson Line are qualified to perform the service, and if the clause is to be construed independent of the remainder of the act the contract should be awarded to the Munson Line.

It appears, however, that the Shipping Board and the Postoffice Department concurred in recommending an appropriation of $560,000 to cover a mail contract with the Gulf Brazil River Plate Line. The Budget Bureau, with the approval of the President, sent an estimate for this appropriation to Congress, and Congress made the appropriation. It was understood by the President, the Budget Bureau, the Shipping Board, the Postoffice Department and Congress that the mail contract was to be awarded as a method of insuring the continued operation of the line. "This money is for new contracts," testified Assistant Postmaster General Glover before the House committee, "under the merchant marine act, 1928. We propose to pay them under the classification of the merchant marine act, 1928, as all the past contracts have been made."

The unmistakable purpose of Congress, in making an appropriation for a mail contract with the Gulf Brazil River Plate Line, was to make sure that the line would remain in operation. To award this contract to another concern because it made a lower bid would nullify the merchant marine act. The interdepartmental committee does not dare to go that far, but it does its best to paralyze the merchant marine law by recommending that no action be taken until Congress can make its purpose clear.

Executive officials are taking great risks when they suggest that an act of Congress be suspended because they pretend not to understand it. The President might suspend them, and put in men who can obey the law; or Congress might take a notion to inquire why this effort is being made to suspend the operation of law.

WASHINGTON'S GROWTH.

The remarkable growth of Washington is attracting the attention of the entire country. A new era of expansion, beginning during the World War, is now in full swing, and is transforming the National Capital into a metropolis of unique character. No other city pretends to rival Washington in beauty, and its permanent supremacy in that regard will be even less subject to challenge when the Government's building program has been completed. But Washington is becoming also a busy manufacturing and industrial city, and as its population increases it will undoubtedly overtake certain other cities which little dreamed of such competition.

The advantage possessed by Washington over cities built by industries is twofold: First, the physical plan of Washington is more ample and beautiful than that of other cities, thanks to the great city planner, George Washington; and second, the United States Government powerfully contributes to the stability of the Capital, both by its disbursements and its building operations. Although the Government in recent years has failed to contribute a fair proportion of the cost of governing Washington, thereby imposing an unjust burden upon local taxpayers, the growth of the city continues at an accelerating pace.

A new ideal of suburban beauty has been adopted by home owners and real estate concerns, and now it is the rule throughout Greater Washington to take advantage of natural scenic attractions instead of destroying them to make room for houses. The result is the development of environs which command universal admiration. Coincident with private and corporate enterprise, the Government's park authorities are conserving and transforming large areas into parks, connected by modern drives. Washington is thus ringed about by greenery, suitably utilized for both beauty and accessibility.

The Nation's most glorious city is unfolding new beauties as time and skill cooperate in its development. The increasing population finds wonderful opportunities for business as needs increase, while an ever-widening circle of commercial tributaries finds in Washington both a market and a source of supply. Rail, water, highway and air communications are expanding, all of them contributing to the growth of Washington and receiving benefits from it. Sections of mountainous Virginia which were recently inaccessible are now the week-end homes of Washingtonians. The Blue Ridge Mountains are a part of the outer rim of the National Capital, whose opposite rim touches Chesapeake Bay. Here and now a city is rising whose varied beauty and rich advantages are making it the pearl of the world's cities. Fortunate is the American who can make his home in Washington; and he is welcome here, because it belongs to him.

MANY INVENTIONS.

Almost without exception, marine disasters have been attributed, in whole or in part, to fallibility of the human element. In some cases the human element was directly responsible. In others it was only that the human element failed to react properly in an unforeseen emergency. It is generally recognized that because of the potential fallibility of the human element there always will be disasters, unless, in time, it is found possible to train human beings so thoroughly to perform certain duties that they will always react as they should. Even then, however, the unexpected will have to be reckoned with, and it is the unexpected that usually is the main contributory cause of disaster.

The shipping and engineering exhibition which was held in London last week brought to light numerous new inventions designed to assist the human element in the operation of ships and to replace it in certain functions. There was exhibited an automatic wireless receiver which, in the event of the receipt of an S O S call while the operator is off duty, rings bells in all parts of the ship. There was also shown a light ray that functions as a lookout, reporting the movement of any object, even a fog bank, crossing its path. Exhibited for the first time was the artificial horizon, making possible observations at night or in fog, alongside of which appeared the mechanical helmsman, designed to keep a ship on its course despite attempts of wind and tide to deflect it. Automatic fire extinguishers, improved sounding machines, message pick-ups, range finders and lifeboats that lower themselves were among other new devices on exhibit.

As machinery replaces human beings the human element will play a less important role in the operation of vessels. Nevertheless, it always will be present and always liable to fail in an emergency.

THE TARIFF AS MEDICINE.

The cry of the oyster for tariff protection against his cheap-labor cousins in Japanese waters again illustrates the impregnable confidence of some Americans in the saving grace of Congress. There seem to be two reasons for asking Congress to grant tariff protection to the oyster. First, duties have been granted to many American products much less worthy; and, second, there is something wrong with the oyster industry in the Chesapeake.

Until a comparatively recent date the oyster supply had been rapidly diminishing. Numerous attempts have been made to remedy the situation, but each time they have met with stubborn opposition from the oystermen. It seems that some one had an inalienable right to exploit the oyster, and that no one had the right, or the perseverance, to enforce conservation. The result has been gradual exhaustion of oyster beds. Prices went up, and oysters from Japan began to find a market here. Now it is asserted that there is only one possibility of restoring the industry to its former flourishing condition, and that is by levying an 8-cent duty on canned oysters from the Orient.

Substitution of a tariff for conservation of natural resources makes many an American disgusted. If an industry fails to make a profit because of poor management, or by reason of wasteful exploitation, an immediate wail of woe is sent up to Dr. Congress, asking for a dose of protection. It is not often that the doctor prescribes tariff medicine for patients of this kind, but when he does fall into that error the result is always fatal.

The oystermen are not the only ones advocating the tariff panacea theory.

A group of oil men is asking Congress to protect America from foreign petroleum. The United States is using up its oil supply several times as fast as any other nation, and yet Congress is asked to put a premium on wildcat drilling by closing the market to foreign petroleum. A potion no less deadly is sought by certain groups of lumber men. The country is cutting its timber with reckless disregard of the future, and Congress is asked to hasten the process by excluding lumber from other countries.

Keeping protection within its legitimate field is one of the most difficult phases of tariff revision. A duty is not a substitute for conservation and never will be. Even the alchemy of Congress is not sufficient to restore youthful prosperity to industries which have wasted their substance in riotous living.

ZONING APPLICATIONS.

The joint committee of local trade bodies which has been acting in an advisory capacity to the Zoning Commission now suggests that there be set up a zoning board of appeals charged with passing upon all applications seeking modifications of or exceptions to zoning classifications of property in specific cases. The Zoning Commission would continue to determine zoning policy. The recommendation is an outgrowth of the determination of the commission to hold zoning hearings in the future but three times a year. If this course is pursued, says the joint committee, hardship will be worked on owners and builders.

Something may be said both for and against the proposal to hold zoning hearings at four-month intervals. Primarily this procedure should tend to stabilize the zoning rules. On the other hand, if a long time must elapse before it is decided whether or not a proposed exemption is in the public interest, numerous building plans are bound to fall through. The Zoning Commission took this into consideration when it decided to hold hearings at four-month intervals. It made its decision both because it believed that zoning practice should be improved and because it found itself physically unable to continue to hold as many as ten hearings a year.

If it can be proved that hardship will be worked by the new policy it should not be put into effect. In that event, there might be need of a zoning board of appeals. But the simpler solution would seem to lie in enlargement of the personnel of the Zoning Commission itself so that hearings could be held at more frequent intervals without a division of authority and responsibility.

EUROPE AND AMERICA.

By NORMAN ANGEL.
In the London Spectator.

The undoubted superiority of America and its economic predominance today are not to be explained by superiority of natural resources, but by a political fact (which gives rise, be it noted, to an economic one). The States have political unity; Europe has not. If the course of historical development in North America had been more like that of South America, so that English-speaking America had been as much divided as is Spanish-speaking America; if, in what is now the United States, there existed, not one nation, but a dozen rival nations—as south of the Mexican border there are more than a dozen different nations—we should not now be talking about American power and its predominance in the world. North America would figure for very little more in such terms than does South America.

But the physical conditions would be precisely the same—the same soil and air and water and raw materials of wealth. They would, however, because of a purely political fact, be exploited in an entirely different way. Large-scale industry, as we know it in America, would not exist. If Henry Ford had had to drive his car, not over indifferent country roads, but over a dozen hostile tariff barriers, into States, each one of which was determined to have its own patriotic 100 per cent Henry Ford, and if Massachusetts had always been talking of the competition of its trade with that of Pennsylvania or Michigan—well, of course, there would have been no Henry Fords.

If we are to get any clear idea of the relative potential strength of Europe as compared to America, we must imagine Europe achieving at last some unity comparable to that which a happier history has already achieved for the States. In that event we should, leaving Russia out of account, have on this side of the world a unit of 250,000,000 people, of whom the British, German and Scandinavian at least have shown themselves to be every bit as inherently capable of military, political, social and economic organization as the Americans. If we can imagine such unification having taken place, there would be, in the Near East and in Africa, a field for the employment of large-scale industrial organization corresponding in some measure to the part played by the undeveloped West in the industrial development of America.

Given this one fact of European unity, the predominance of America in terms of potential power, whether military, political, or economic, would have disappeared.

Whatever the degree of unification which is achieved, it is all but certain that British policy will oscillate between an attempt to aid the process of unification and the attempt to keep clear of entanglement and to form, with America, a body detached from Europe, having no part in its efforts to form an orderly society.

Britain's special relationship to America—and it is a special relationship despite the passing of the domination of the Anglo-Saxon group in America itself—may place in British hands a power of veto upon certain continental and American tendencies. When European tendencies toward some dangerous form of anti-American challenge became strong, she could weaken them by withdrawing toward America; and, by drawing toward Europe and accelerating its unification, she could remind the United States betimes that the dictatorship of America is not decreed in the nature of things.

Springfield Union: Young people aren't as quiet as the young people of olden days used to be, but neither are the old people.

Her Fault.

Cincinnati Enquirer: A girl can't help it if nature gave her that kind of a face, but half-grown hair fixed that way is her own fault.

Waiting World.

Look Out!

Slater News: A girl can wear a golf skirt when she can't play golf, and a bathing suit when she can't swim, but when she puts on a wedding garment she means business.

Harrowing.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: It is not the tariff which has this country in the throes of suspense, it wants to know whether Calvin Coolidge will kiss the bride when his son is married.

"WHY CONVICTS LEAVE HOME."

Among items of information presented yesterday at the first of a series of conferences of Gov. Roosevelt with the prison officials is that prisoners in New York State penal institutions are provided with meals with an average cost of 7 cents, says the Troy Times. That is half a cent less than the cost in 1868. Several wardens expressed the opinion that prison meals should not cost less than 10 cents each. Argument is hardly necessary to support this contention. Even with allowance for the fact that prison supplies are bought at wholesale prices, those 7-cent meals arouse curiosity as to their composition and quantity.

In the course of the governor's conferences more information about prison conditions will be brought out. It will evidently throw light on the causes of recent prison revolts. Why yet try to blame the Baumes laws, when it is already in evidence that inmates of prisons must subsist upon 7 cents' worth of food per meal?

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE CHILD AND THE WATCH.

He gave his child a watch to play with,
I think to quell his constant clamor.
The youngster hit it with a hammer.

The little wheels and springs went flying,
And ne'er again could they be righted.
With such a sport, there's no denying
The little fellow was delighted!

To pound that bright and glittering gay thing
He raised the hammer high above it.
Though 'twas a most expensive plaything
He didn't know the value of it.

That night the father muttered sadly:
(I quote his comment to the letter)
"Although he used my good watch badly,
The litle rascal knew no better."

God gives us all a life to play with
And we misuse it, though we love it.
But oh, too oft it's done away with
Before we've learned the value of it.

He Is No Good as a Fox Hound if a Rabbit Track Can Turn Him.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

NOTHING fails like success.

The supreme test of character is the sound of clapping hands and the great crisis of every career comes at the moment of triumph, when the long struggle seems ended.

The world is full of human wrecks that drifted on the rocks in calm seas after the storm.

In every community there is some well-fed genius content to do shoddy work because he still hears some faint echo of the applause that greeted his first and only worth-while achievement.

In the slums are broken and debased men who can remember words of praise that caused them to relax and begin the descent to oblivion.

In the resorts of the idle rich are craftsmen, still respected for great work done long ago, who have lost the desire to achieve and are content to enjoy their fame in idleness—and others who cultivate a pet vice in idle luxury while understudies, working in obscurity, keep their fame alive and earn the money to pay for their follies.

Only the truly great can survive success. Only those possessed of character to match their genius can turn their backs on cheering crowds and return to their labors.

The weakling is destroyed by the spotlight. It dazzles him and bewitches him, and his foolish vanity accepts it as evidence of immortality.

Let him attain to any height, however insignificant, and he will turn to marvel at the great way he has come, forever thereafter content with his little success, oblivious of the heights above him.

Small successes that win applause and content the vanity are more tragic than failure. The failure still has hope and ambition; the one content with a small success is tricked by his ego and made to accept a trivial prize in the belief that it is a great one.

One who would escape the treachery of success must beware of selecting a definite goal. All prizes turn ashes when they are won. The true success is to be discontented with the work done today and rejoice in the opportunity to improve upon it tomorrow.

The man content with today's work is a man who has finished growing. To live in the past is to confess decay.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE RADIO AUTOMOBILE.

One of the big motor corporations is to equip its cars with radios. And this, believe it or not, at a time when automobile manufacturers in general had begun to boast that unnecessary noises had been eliminated from motor cars!

* * * *

The automobile company will also enter into a deal with a big radio concern for the handling of its products. When an automobilist wheels up to a service station or garage next season the attendant will not know whether it's to be an order for a quart of oil and five gallons of gas or a new bulb and a yard of copper wire.

* * * *

When you see a man in his shirt sleeves working with his tool kit on a car pulled over to one side of the road it will be no sure sign anything is wrong with the car. He may be trying to fix the radio set.

* * * *

"I want this car overhauled," an owner will say as he drives his bus into a service station.

"What's wrong with it," the mechanic will inquire.

"I can't get WEAF clearly!" will be the reply.

* * * *

The test of a good car may not be how far it will go, but how much it will hear.

* * * *

"We're turning out a great car this year," the sales agent may tell you at the next automobile show. "It will give you 30 jazz orchestras to the gallon, take any philharmonic concert on high and be good for 10,000 programs before you have to have the carbon removed.

"How is she on the pick-up?" a prospective buyer asked an automobile agent yesterday.

"Great," he replied. "She can get Fort Worth without shifting."

Just as this is written word arrives of a brand-new type of road accident now destined to become quite common. Two radios collided head-on at a street intersection, injuring both audiences. Motorcycle police arrested both drivers. The charge: Failing to put out their hands when about to tune out of one program into another.

Hi: I thought you might be interested in a sign I saw on the road between Mauch Chunk, Pa., and Hazleton:

HORSESHOE PITCHING.

No one these days reveals his Americanism so much as he does when he takes to horseshoe pitching, observes the Richmond Times Dispatch. It is the game of the hour. Love of it is not confined to Virginia, but extends to all 48 States of the Union.

Formerly it was the sport of rural folk; now, however, men of the city are quite as much given to it as their brothers in the country. Take a spin any clear evening after working hours through Richmond, Roapoke or Lynchburg and you will find devotees of horseshoe pitching intent upon winning a community championship in the presence of a wildly enthusiastic gallery.

Golf is still very popular, as is baseball; there has been evident during the last few months a remarkable croquet revival; for widespread renewal of interest, however, the ancient and honorable game of horseshoe pitching must be awarded the prize.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Gorgeous Autumn Scenery on American Automobile Trails.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The American who is the fortunate owner of a car has an opportunity in the autumn to enjoy such gorgeous scenery as no other people on earth are privileged to gaze upon. The American woods in the fall present a picture of constantly changing color tones to be seen nowhere else in the world. This condition is due to the fact that we have, especially along the Eastern seaboard, a greater variety of timber than is to be found in any other land.

The maples are, of all the trees, the most diverse in their tastes, for maples color their garments in every conceivable shade of reds and yellows. The oaks prefer browns, shaded through a score of tints from that of the fox skin to the deepest brown-black. Sumachs and dogwoods run to reds, from vermillion to scarlet, while the chestnuts and hickories are more modest in their selections, adopting saffron and dun shades.

Hemlocks, pines and firs are unchangeable, and unlike their fellows retain their autumn garments throughout the year, shedding their old clothing only when the sap in the springtime aids in sending forth new "needles."

The Washington car owner is particularly fortunate in the opportunities which are presented to him in this direction, for he has available the wonderful beauties of the Susquehanna trail or the Lincoln highway, reaching through the mountains of Maryland and Pennsylvania and over the divide into the watershed of the St. Lawrence, with superb roads stretching for hundreds of miles through scenery unsurpassed.

Dr. Woodrow Eliot's Radio Education Pitilessly Discussed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just read the letter from J. Woodrow Eliot, Ph. D., in regard to his radio. He is, I believe, legally within his rights, and we are a law-abiding community.

It is, however, only a question of time when unnecessary noises will be relegated to the place of unnecessary obnoxious odors.

Had Dr. Eliot gone to his house agent and said, "I want an apartment; I keep a jazz band, a symphony orchestra, several speakers' bureaus, a baseball team, and I stage an occasional prize fight in my rooms," the lease never would have been granted to him, but because he has all of these things in his room, under the name of radio, no one has any right (legal) to complain.

His programs may be educational to him, but perhaps many of his neighbors have passed beyond that stage of education and so find his radio program old stuff.

I am a radio fan, and have a beauty, large and expensive, but because I have had the training of an artist I realize that noise is an offense. My radio is not heard out of my own room because it has been so carefully placed that it plays into the room and is properly modulated and the sound not thrown off into space.

When you hear a radio blaring through a window you can realize that the owner is in need of the education he is so fruitlessly seeking. I am sure that as Dr. Eliot's education progresses he will understand the real beauties of his radio and will be very red and self-conscious when he remembers the letter he sent to The Post. FRANCES MERCER JONES.

Lucid Explanation of the Behavior of St. Mary's County Rabbits.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am surprised at the crass ignorance or amazing naivete of V. B. C. in the matter of those St. Mary's County (Maryland) rabbits whose alleged strange and vicious behavior he records. He seems not to be posted in biology at all; to be utterly ignorant of instances of similar or worse deportment on the part of rabbits.

V. B. C. evidently does not know the States' right tenets of Gov. Berk Ritchie of the "whoopee" State of Maryland. Said rights pertain almost absolutely to the right of the citizens of that State to drink whatsoever they please and whenever and wheresoever they wish to drink it. The people along that rabbit-beleaguered path through St. Mary's estimate their cornfields and orchards by the pint and not by the bushel.

V. B. C. may be wholly mistaken as to the species of animals that attacked his tires and made him and his companions flee the county. Those animals may have been bloodhounds or armadilloes or muskoxen or pileated woodpeckers. Those creatures all look very much alike. I am told, to persons who have tested the voltage of St. Mary's County homebrew. My advice to V. B. C. is that next time he is sober he put on shinguards and a gasmask and take a few snapshots of the animals that worry the heels of passing rolling stock. They may be almost anything except rabbits. It may have been the distillation or the worm that made him hairbrained.

STRICKLAND GILLILAN.

PROTECT BIRD LIFE.

Bird protection in the country is not a fad nor a piece of sentiment. We have not engaged in a 17-year campaign of education for the fun of it, says the Farm Journal, but because bird protection is the strongest weapon in the defensive war of the human race against insects.

And this leads us to speak of cats.

Cats are not the sole enemies of song and insectivorous birds, but they are among the most dangerous. Many families can not, perhaps, put up bird boxes and make the farm a bird refuge, but no family need see its valuable bird population slaughtered by cats.

Tramp cats should be mercilessly shot. Household pets should be presented with a set of bells, preferably of the kind with a strap passing between the forelegs and around the body. That will warn and protect adult birds.

But every cat, no matter how tame, must be suspected of murderous designs on young birds and fledglings.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Talented Girl Makes Short Capital Visit

By JEAN ELIOT.

IN this day of advance heralding, Washington does not often entertain an angel unaware. But, accompanied by her father, Dr. John de Hellenbranth, Mlle. Elena de Hellenbranth slipped into town and out again before any one knew she was here. However, her friends are endeavoring to persuade her to return later with her sister, Mlle. Berta de Hellenbranth, and to bring with her for exhibition here the collection of twin portraits of celebrities, American and foreign, which are now being shown at the Brooklyn Museum.

These two gifted Hungarian girls, who have an international reputation as artists of the first rank, always paint the same subject and at the same time, but their personalities are so different and their talents have developed along such diverse lines that the resulting portraits are sometimes startlingly dissimiliar. Usually they dispose of but one portrait, keeping the other for their collection, so that they have a remarkably interesting group of portraits to draw from for exhibition purposes.

Among the Washingtonians whom the two girls have already painted are Senator William E. Borah, former Senator James E. Wadsworth, jr., and Countess Szechenyi, wife of the Hungarian Minister, whose portrait is among those now hung at the Brooklyn Museum. They also did twin portraits of Miss Helen Gary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hampson Gary, one of which now hangs in Mr. and Mrs. Gary's Washington home.

Dr. John de Hellenbranth is a distinguished Hungarian lawyer. The family home is in Budapest, and, although the girls have been long enough in this country to speak English fluently and to have become attached to America and Americans, they are strong in their allegiance to their native land. Their artistic heritage is definitely Hungarian, although they have studied and exhibited in half a dozen countries. Dr. and Mme. de Hellenbranth and their daughters came to the United States to visit a son, Dr. Roland de Hellenbranth, who is an American citizen and who is practicing medicine in Atlantic City. They are staying with Dr. de Hellenbranth at his home in Ventnor, making occasional visits to Washington, New York and other cities.

Mlles. de Hellenbranth have done a portrait of the banished Empress Zita and one of their finest works, a portrait of Lord Rothermere, famous British publicist and champion of a united Hungary, hangs in the Hungarian National Parliament at Budapest. Of the 57 pictures, most of them portraits, but some landscapes and other paintings, which were presented to the curator of the Brooklyn Museum for his selection, 56 were hung and the one was rejected only because it was too much like one of the others in subject.

Mlle. Elena de Hellenbranth, who describes herself as the quiet one of the family, says that her painting is "noisy," while the vivacious Mlle. Berta paints in quiet tones. The whole family is gifted and the girls' mother is a fine musician, the last pupil to study with Liszt.

After Thursday tell your cabman, "Thomas Circle." For on that evening the Paradis will open its doors again. Many parties are already planned for the Paradis opening. One of the most interesting groups will include the Egyptian Minister and Mme. Samy Pasha and the Persian Minister, Mirza Yevoud Khan Meftah, who will be the guests of honor at a large party given by Mr. William H. Staub, of Baltimore. Another large group will be entertained by Mrs. Benjamin Livingston, while Mr. Bishop Hill will be host to a gay party of the younger society folk. Others entertaining will include Mr. Robert Hinckley, Mr. Arthur Lyons, Mr. B. R. Boatwright, Mr. George J. Horning, jr., Mr. Edward Carter, Mr. Stokes Sammons, Mr. F. W. Symes and Mr. Rudolph Lyons.

The redecoration of Le Paradis has been based on the premise that Washington people want their favorite resort to look exactly as it was. So the original decorative scheme of William Lawrence Bottomley, famous New York architect, has been duplicated down to the exact shade of the pinky-orange hangings originally used.

The opening of the gold room at the Wardman Park Hotel tomorrow evening will be a gala occasion, with Guy Lombardo and his dance orchestra, the Royal Canadians, as the special attraction.

Among the many who plan to entertain are Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood Casey, who will have fourteen in their party: Mr. Gerald J. Lyon and Mr. Arthur Lyon, Mr. Clarence E. Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Rubin, Mr. S. T. Butts, Mr. C. H. Wynton, Mr. E. M. Curran, Mr. B. S. Gillian, Mr. R. E. Early and Mr. W. Chapman.

Miss Evelyn Palmer Doyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis I. Doyle, was married Saturday to Mr. William Earle Kline, of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kline, of this city. The ceremony took place at 6 o'clock in the evening in the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, the Rev. J. Russell Verbrycke, of Berwyn, Md., who officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents, performing the ceremony.

The church was effectively decorated with palms and white dahlias and asters.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of shell moire fashioned on classic lines, with long fitted sleeves. The sleeves and gown were trimmed in princess lace, and the bride's veil, of eggshell tulle, was held in place by a band of the same lace. She carried a shower bouquet of cream roses tied with silver ribbon.

Miss Virginia Marquand Doyle was the maid of honor, wearing a gown of capucine chiffon, made with a fitted bodice with long sleeves, and a full skirt having the fashionable uneven hemline. She wore a lace-trimmed felt hat and carried orange dahlias and purple asters.

The other attendants were Mrs. Richard H. Moulton, Miss Ruth Doyle, Mrs. Archibald Hawley and Mrs. Richard S. Paulett. Their gowns were like that of the maid of honor, but in putty color, with sashes in capucine, chartreuse and purple. They wore hats to correspond and carried dahlias and asters.

Mr. Donald L. Kline, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man and the ushers selected were Mr. George von Dackenhausen, of Washington; Mr. Oscar B. Coblentz, jr., of New York; Mr. Archibald W. Hawley, of Washington, and Mr. Edward P. Coblentz, of Baltimore.

A buffet supper for members of the wedding party and family followed at the home of the bride's parents in Chevy Chase. Mrs. Doyle, mother of the bride, wore a gown of ashes of roses, chiffon and lace, and Mrs. Kline, mother of the bridegroom, was in figured chiffon. Both wore corsages of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mr. Kline and his bride left later for a wedding trip, the bride wearing a dull green homespun ensemble with a felt hat to match and a gray blouse and accessories to correspond. They will be at home upon their return at Terris Towe, Jackson Heights, Long Island, N. Y.

Mrs. Paul Edmond Brown was hostess at bridge and luncheon Saturday at her home in Fairfax, Va., in honor of Mrs. Dailey Ray Stonaker, of Winchester. Mrs. Stonaker was before her marriage, on August 19, Miss Lucinda Jennings Fry, of Georgetown. The list of guests included Mrs. Victor Cahill, Mrs. Jay Lawler, Mrs. Michael Pugh, Miss Elizabeth Gorman, Miss Joy Rabbett, Miss Madeline King, Miss Margaret Mannix and Miss Anne Nolan, of Washington; also Miss Inez Moore, Miss Margaret Moore and Mrs. Elmer Ryder Duncan, of Alexandria, and Miss Warwick Rust, Miss Barbara Ritchie, Miss Emily Blake, Miss Margaret Keith and Miss Virginia Allison, of Fairfax.

The marriage of Miss Margaret M. Faur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fenelon D. Faur, and Mr. Stephen A. Allin will take place on Wednesday at noon at the home of the bride's mother at 5325 Thirteenth street, the Rev. John E. Briggs officiating. A reception will follow the ceremony. Mr. Aplin and his bride will make a honeymoon trip by motor and will be at home after October 1 at 3221 Connecticut avenue.

Pan-American Concert Lures Music Lovers

Many Society Folk Will Assemble on Esplanade for Recital.

The second concert of the summer season under the auspices of the Pan-American Union will be held on the esplanade of the Union tomorrow evening. This event will be the forty-seventh concert at which music from the Latin-American Republics is played exclusively. The concert will be from 8 until 10 p. m. and will be broadcast over Station NAA.

The United States Navy Band, under the leadership of Lieut. Charles Benter, will play a specially prepared program, which will feature a selection from the Brazilian opera, "Salvador Rosa," by Carlos Gomes, the composer of the famous overture to "Il Guarani." The selection from "Salvador Rosa" is practically unknown in this country, although it has enjoyed a vogue in Latin America and also in Europe. In the same program will be a ballet selection, "La Fete Chez Therese," by another famous composer from Latin America, Reynaldo Hahn. Hahn, although a native of Venezuela, has been one of the leading conductors in France for a great many years. He has charge of the orchestras at Deauville and Cannes. Two soloists from the Navy Band, Ralph Ostrom, cornetist, and Louis Goucher, vibraphonist, will play some selections especially arranged for rendition in this concert.

The assisting artist will be Federico Flores, barytone, from Mexico, and he will be accompanied by his brother, Raoul Sergio, who will also play some Latin-American piano selections.

Senor Flores is one of the best known of the Latin-American vocalists touring this country. The critics agree that his voice possesses unusual power and sweetness and that he also has a magnetic personality.

Senor Flores is a native of Monterey, Nuevo Leon, Mexico. He started his vocal career as a member of a church choir, where he attracted the attention of a noted musician who impressed upon the father of the young man the advisability of having him study at the Conservatory of Music in Mexico City. After two years at this famous institution, he was awarded first prize in the vocal division. Immediately after his graduation, he was engaged to sing in opera, and made his debut in "Pagliacci." Later, he toured his own country as a concert artist, and also Cuba, Porto Rico and the South American countries. When Senor Flores returned to Mexico, he was engaged to sing the stellar roles with the National Grand Opera Company of Mexico City, and made great success in a wide range of parts.

Last season Senor Flores toured Mexico and the cities of the southern part of the United States, offering recitals wherein he featured Spanish and Latin-American music, appearing in costume. For the present season he has been engaged to sing the leading barytone roles with the Manhattan Opera Stars, Inc., of New York City. Later on he expects to make a tour of the United States and Canada, giving recitals in costume. After singing the part of Escamille in "Carmen" in New York tomorrow, Senor Flores will leave immediately for Washington to participate in the concert at the Pan-American Union. This will be his first appearance in Washington, and he will render two groups of Latin-American selections—some of these numbers being composed especially for his use.

Raoul Sergio has also toured Mexico and the United States as a concert artist. Senor Sergio is an interpreter of ultramodern music, and at the concert on the 17th of September will play a group of piano solos by noted Mexican composers.

There is much interest in the forthcoming event, and invitations are in great demand. Undoubtedly it will be the most largely attended of any of the concerts given under the auspices of the Pan-American Union.

It may be added that another concert by the United Service Orchestra will be given on December 10 in the Hall of the Americas of the Pan-American Union, and that a date so far ahead as April 22 has been selected for still another.

The Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Prieto will entertain at dinner tomorrow evening in the gold room of the Wardman Park Hotel, when Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadian Orchestra will open the fall season at the hotel. Others who will entertain that evening will be Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Gillian, Mr. C. E. Smith, Mr. Austin C. Walls, Mr. Gerald Lyon and Mr. Arthur Lyon.

Kappa Kappa Gamma Alumnae Association of Washington will hold its first meeting of the fall tomorrow at the Embassy, Connecticut avenue and S street. Supper will be served at 6 p. m. The president, Mrs. Ralph Lawrence, will be hostess, assisted by Miss Carlotta Veitenheimer. The program will include the report of the Beta province convention which was held September 6, 7 and 8 at Virginia Beach, and attended by over 80 Kappas, sixteen of whom were from the newly installed chapter of Gamma Chi at George Washington University.

Friends in the Capital will be interested to learn that Mrs. Laidlaw Benet, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bedell Laidlaw, of New York, has selected Saturday, September 28, as the date of her marriage to Commandatore Ferrucchi, director of fine arts at the Academy in Rome. The ceremony will take place in Mrs. Benet's New York apartment at the New Weston, which opened last week upon her return from abroad. Commandatore Ferrucchi is expected to arrive this week in New York.

The engagement was announced last March in Rome, where Mrs. Benet spent the winter. Mrs. Benet's first marriage to Emley Benet was dissolved by the courts several years ago. She is a sister of Mrs. Edward Roesler, Mrs. Jesse Lynch Williams and James Lees Laidlaw, all of New York, and the late Robert Laidlaw, of Englewood, N. J.

Air Secretary Is Host to 800 At Clambake

Guests From Many Parts of New York State Attend Event.

Eight hundred guests were present at the old-time clambake given by Mr. F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics, at the Peacock Point estate of his mother, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, sr., at Locust Valley, Long Island. The bake, which is an annual affair given by Mr. Davison for members of the Republican organization in Nassau County and other friends, drew guests not only from the county but from other parts of the State.

Among those present were the Republican State chairman, Mr. W. J. Maier, and Mr. Davison's summer neighbor at Glen Cove, Representative Ruth Pratt, recently named national committee woman.

The bake was prepared on the beach and served on the lawn adjoining the home of Mrs. Davison, sr. Talking motion pictures and music were on the program. Interested participants in the affair were the four sons of the Air Secretary and Mrs. F. Trubee Davison, Frederick Trubee, jr., Endicott Peabody, Daniel Pomeroy and Artemus Gates Davison, who were with their mother.

Mrs. Kathryn Carpenter Wed to Mr. Hunt.

The marriage of Mrs. Kathryn R. Carpenter, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Backus, of Brooklyn, to Mr. W. Roger Hunt, of New York, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Hunt, took place Saturday at noon in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York. The Rev. Herbert R. Stevenson, acting rector of the church, performed the ceremony in the presence of members of both families. Afterward a wedding breakfast was held at the Ambassador. The bride was unattended. Mr. James Waldo Hunt, of Chicago, was his brother's best man. Upon their return from a honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Hunt will live in New York.

The bride comes of Colonial and Revolutionary stock, and on her mother's side is a descendant of the Converts, who settled near West Point early in the seventeenth century. Her grandmother was Frances Saunders Garrison, whose family settled in Virginia before the Revolution and the family estate adjoined that of the Washington family.

Mr. Hunt was graduated from Yale in 1916 and later from the New York Law School. In the war he was overseas as a lieutenant in the Army field service of the American Red Cross. He is connnected with the National City Bank.

'JANGO,' FILM STORY OF JUNGLES, AT POLI

DR. MURRAY LECTURES

¾ "Jango," latest of the jungleland motion pictures and a photographic record of the 1925 Davenport-Quigley expedition, opened last night for a week's run at Poli's.

Dr. Benjamin Franklin Murray, an associate of Dr. Davenport, delivered a explanatory lecture concurrent with the projection of the picture in the absence of Dr. Davenport, who, it was stated, is suffering from the effects of a cobra bite sustained while on the exhibition. Dr. Davenport will take the rostum on and after Wednesday matinee, it was stated.

Replete With Thrills.

While "Jango," whose name is symbolical of jungleland, can not be said to possess the dramatic appeal and the tense moments of "Chang" and "Simba," it is a photographic record of the lift of the African big game hunter replete with all its fascination of the lift of the trackless veldt and the impenetrable jungle, not withstanding the dangers from all sources, not the least of which is the tsetse fly.

The film and the lecture begin with the formation of the safari and the rites of the aboripinal tribes that good luck may attend the efforts of the hunters. Proceeding through jungle and prairie, the progress of the expedition is traced with intimate photographs and colorful descriptions of the life and habits of monkies, pythons, driver ants, water buffalo, oryx, crocadiles, girriffes, antelopes, lions, tigers, leopards, elephants, and many others.

Tragedy Is Portrayed.

A most graphic account is given of the death on Dr. Neuman who was gored by a rhinoceros while on the trip, by Dr. Murray and pictures shown of the events leading up to the tragedy.

Primarily concerned with the fauna of the central portion of the Dark Continent, the pictures reveal much of the picturesqueness of the country, its majestic mountains, gigantic waterfalls, its formidable jungle vegetation, and its meandering streams. Even ethnology receives a portion of the footage, some of the many dances of the savage tribes to draw the good will of the gods for the travelers, and the wedding dances, photographed for the first time, are among the subjects dealing with the life of the natives.

Climate Hits Photography.

Due to the fact that the picture was made under the trying climatic conditions of equatorial Africa, the photography leaves much in places to be desired, a haze and an indistinct outline of the figures almost making some scenes entirely incomprehensible. These unfortunate circumstances are but few and the greater length of the film done very well.

"Jango," even without the dramatic content of its illustrious predecessors, is an engrossing travelogue which, with the attendant lecture, offers an evening of rare entertainment for those who like the unusual.

Midnight Holdup Nets Man and Woman $25

Held up at pistol point by a colored man and woman in front of his home at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, James J. Barry, of 606 Third street southeast, was robbed of $25, he reported to police.

Barry said the couple approached him as he was turning into the house and ordered him to throw up his hands. The colored man held the gun while the woman rifled his pockets, Barry said. After completing the robbery, the man ordered Barry to enter the house. It was reported. Barry obeyed these instructions, waited a few minutes, and called the police.

The FOOD WASTED in many homes WOULD BUY THIS GENERAL ELECTRIC

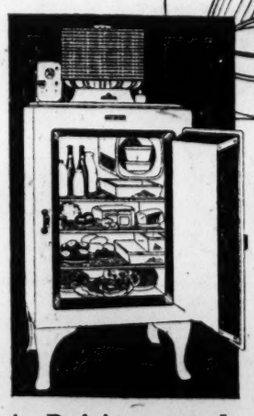
That pint of milk which you wouldn't think of giving the children, the half-bottle of cream that's ever so faintly sour, the bowl of applesauce that doesn't smell quite sweet, the soup stock, the end of a leg of lamb . . . the countless left-overs that would make perfectly good dishes if you could only be sure they were safely fresh.

You can be sure. A General Electric Refrigerator will quietly and automatically maintain a temperature safely below 50 degrees. Left-overs will always be healthfully fresh . . . you'll have a generous supply of ice cubes whenever you want them . . . your current bills will be surprisingly low.

Keep track of the food you have to throw away for one week, multiply that figure by four . . . and then compare your result with the moderate monthly payment which will give you the perfect, health-guarding refrigeration which a General Electric assures. Remember that this is the only refrigerator which has an all-steel cabinet and an hermetically sealed mechanism. Come in today and get the whole story.



Every General Electric Refrigerator is Hermetically Sealed

This record stands alone

There are now more than 300,000 homes enjoying the convenience, economy and protection of General Electric Refrigerators—and not one owner has ever had to spend a single dollar for repairs or service.

We endorse the National Food Preservation Program. 50° is the safety point for perishable foods.

The Seven Dials Mystery

A Serial Story by AGATHA CHRISTIE.

There's a house party on at Chimneys, an estate outside London, occupied for the present on lease by Sir Oswald and Lady Coote. Guests are late to breakfast, especially Jimmy Thesiger and Gerry Wade, much to the annoyance of Lady Coote.

Rupert Bateman, secretary to Sir Oswald, suggests an alarm clock by way of assuring that Wade in particular gets up next morning at a more reasonable hour. They plan to place eight clocks in Wade's room once he is asleep. Bateman, known as "Pongo," places the clocks, and yet next day at noon Wade is still in bed. At 12:20 he is found dead by a servant.

NOW CONTINUE THE STORY.

"Seven instead of eight," said Jimmy, frowning. "I wonder why."

A Doctor's Verdict.

TREDWELL stretched out a detaining hand. With a queer, unnatural feeling of detachment, Jimmy realized that the butler had the whole situation in hand.

"No, sir. Williams has made no mistake. I have already sent for Dr. Cartwright, and in the meantime I have taken the liberty of locking the door, preparatory to informing Sir Oswald of what has occurred. I must now find Mr. Bateman."

Tredwell hurried away. Ronny stood like a man dazed.

"Gerry," he muttered to himself.

Jimmy took his friend by the arm and steered him out through a side door on to a secluded portion of the terrace. He pushed him down on to a seat.

"Take it easy, old son," he said kindly. "You'll get your wind in a minute."

But he looked at him rather curiously. He had had no idea that Ronny was such a friend of Gerry Wade's.

"Poor old Gerry," he said thoughtfully. "If ever a man looked fit, he did."

Ronny nodded.

"All that clock business seems so rotten now," went on Jimmy. "It's odd, isn't it, why farce so often seems to get mixed up with tragedy?

He wa stalking more or less at random, to give Ronny time to recover himself. The other moved restlessly.

"I wish that doctor would come. I want to know——"

"Know what?"

"What he—died of."

Jimmy pursed up his lips.

"Heart?" he hazarded.

Ronny gave a short, scornful laugh.

"I say, Ronny," said Jimmy.

"Well?"

Jimmy found a difficulty in going on.

"You don't mean—you aren't thinking—I mean, you haven't got it into your head that—that, well, I mean he wasn't biffed on the head or anything? Tredwell's locking the door and all that."

It seemed to Jimmy that his words deserved an answer, but Ronny continued to stare straight out in front of him.

Too Much Chloral.

It was Tredwell who disturbed them.

"The doctor would like to see you two gentlemen in the library, if you please, sir."

Ronny sprang up. Jimmy followed him.

Dr. Cartwright was a thin, energetic young man with a clever face. He greeted them with a brief nod. Pongo, looking more serious and spectacled than ever, performed introductions.

"I understand you were a great friend of Mr. Wade," the doctor said to Ronney.

"His greatest friend."

"H'm. Well, this business seems straightforward enough. Sad, though. He looked a healthy young chap. Do you know if he was in the habit of taking stuff to make him sleep?"

"Make him sleep." Ronney stared. "He always slept like a top."

"Well, the facts are simple enough. There'll have to be an inquest, I'm afraid, nevertheless."

"How did he die?"

"There's not much doubt; I should say an overdose of chloral. The stuff was by his bed, and a bottle and a glass. Very sad, these things are."

It was Jimmy who asked the question which he felt was trembling on his friend's lips, and yet which the other could somehow or other not get out.

Question of Foul Play.

"There's no question of—foul play?"

The doctor looked at him sharply.

"Why do you say that? Any cause to suspect it, eh?"

Jimmy looked at Ronny. If Ronny knew anythihng now was the time to speak, but to his astonishment Ronny shook his head.

"No cause whatever," he said clearly.

"And suicide—eh?"

"Certainly not."

"No troubles that you know of? Money troubles? A woman?"

Again Ronny shook his head.

"Now about his relations. They must be notified."

"He's got a sister—a half-sister rather. Lives at Deane Priory. About 20 miles from here. When he wasn't in town Gerry lived with her."

"H'm" said the doctor. "Well, she must be told."

"I'll go," said Ronny. "It's a rotten job, but somebody's got to do it." He looked at Jimmy. "You know her, don't you?"

"Slightly. I've danced with her once or twice."

"Then we'll go in your car. You don't mind, do you? I can't face it alone."

"That's all right,' said Jimmy reassuringly. "I was going to suggest it myself. I'll go and get the old bus cranked up."

By Promise Bound.

Presently the two friends were skimming along in Jimmy's car with a cheerful disregard for such things as speed limits.

"Jimmy," said Ronny at last, "I suppose you're about the best pal I have—now."

"Well," said Jimmy, "what about it?"

He spoke gruffly.

"There's something I'd like to tell you. Something you ought to know."

"About Gerry Wade."

"Yes, about Gerry Wade."

Jimmy waited.

"Well?" he inquired at last.

"I don't know that I ought to," said Ronny.

"Why?"

"I'm bound by a kind of promise."

"Oh! Well, then, perhaps you'd better not."

There was a silence.

"No, I can't," said Ronny suddenly. "All right," said Jimmy. "Just as you like."

After a long silence, Ronny said:

"What's she like?"

"Who?"

"This girl. Gerry's sister."

Jimmy was silent for some minutes, then he said in a voice that had somehow or other altered:

"She's all right. In fact—well, she's a corker."

They were silent till they reached Deane Priory.

Miss Loraine, the maid told them, was in the garden. Unless they wanted to see Mrs. Coker——

Jimmy was eloquent that they did not want to see Mrs Coker.

"The old trout who lives with Loraine."

Ronny Meets Loraine.

They had stepped out into a paved walk. At the nd of it was a girl with two black spaniels. A small girl very fair, dressed in shabby old tweeds. Not at all the girl that Ronny had expected to see. Not, in fact, Jimmy's usual type.

"How do you do," she said. "You mustn't mind Elizabeth. She's just had some puppies and she's very suspicious."

She had a supremely natural manner and, as she looked up smiling, the faint wild rose flush deepened in her cheeks. Her eyes were a very dark blue—like cornflowers.

Suddenly they widened—was it with alarm? As though, already, she guessed.

Jimmy hastened to speak.

"This is Ronny Devereux, Miss Wade. You must often have heard Gerry speak of him."

"Oh! yes." She turned a lovely, warm, welcoming smile on him. "You've both been staying at Chimneys' haven't you? Why didn't you bring Gerry over with you?"

"We—er—couldn't," said Ronny, and then stopped.

Again Jimmy saw the look of fear flash into her eyes.

"Miss Wade," he said. "I'm afraid—I mean, we've got bad news for you."

She was on the alert in a moment.

"Gerry?"

"Yes—Gerry. He's——"

She stamped her foot with sudden passion.

"Oh! tell me—tell me——" She turned suddenly on Ronny. "You'll tell me."

Jimmy felt a pang of jealousy, and in that moment he knew what up to now he had hesitated to admit to himself. He knew why Helen and Nancy and Socks were just "girls" to him and nothing more.

A Plucky Girl.

He only half heard Ronny's voice saying gravely

"Yes, Miss Wade, I'll tell you. Gerry is dead."

She had plenty of pluck. She gasped and drew back, but in a minute or two she was asking eager, searching questions. How? When?

Ronny answered her as gently as he could.

"Sleeping draught? Gerry?"

The incredulity in her voice was plain. Jimmy gave her a glance. It was almost a glance of warning. He had a sudden feeling that Loraine in her innocence might say too much.

In his turn he explained as gently as possible the need for an inquest. She shuddered. She declined their offer of taking her back to Chimneys with them, but explained she would come over later. She had a two-seater of her own.

"But I want to be—be alone a little first," she said piteously.

"I know," said Ronny.

"That's all-right," said Jimmy.

They drove back in silence and there was something like constraint between them.

"My God! that girl's plucky," said Ronny once

Jimmy agreed.

"Gerry was my friend," said Ronny. "It's up to me to keep an eye on her."

"Oh! rather. Of course."

They said no more.

On returning to Chimneys Jimmy was waylaid by a tearful Lady Coote.

"That poor boy," she kept repeating. "That poor boy."

Jimmy made all the suitable remarks he could think of.

The Seven Dials.

He ran lightly up the stairs. Ronny was just emerging from Gerald Wade's room. He seemed taken aback at the sight of Jimmy.

"I've been into see him," he said. "Are you going in?"

'I don't think so,' said Jimmy, who was a healthy young man, with a natural dislike to being reminded of death.

"I think all his friends ought to."

"Oh! do you?" said Jimmy, and registered to himself an impression that Ronny Devereux was damned odd, about it all.

"Yes. It's a sign of respect."

Jimmy sighed, but gave in.

"Oh! very well" he said, and passed in, setting his teeth a little.

There were white flowers arranged on the coverlet, and the room had been tidied and set to rights.

Jimmy gave one quick, nervous glance at the still, white face. Could that be cherubic, pink Gerry Wade? That still, peaceful figure. He shivered.

As he turned to leave the room his glance swept the mantel shelf, and he stopped in astonishment. The alarm clocks had been ranged along it neatly in a row.

He went out sharply. Ronny was waiting for him.

"Looks very peaceful and all that. Rotten luck on him," mumbled Jimmy.

Then he said:

"I say, Ronny; who arranged all those clocks like that in a row?"

"How should I know? One of the servants, I suppose."

"The funny thing is," said Jimmy "that there are seven of them, not eight. One of them's missing. D'd you notice that?"

Ronny made an inaudible sound.

"Seven instead of eight," said Jimmy, frowning. "I wonder why."

YOUR CITY GOVERNMENT

Answers to Queries From Post Readers on Municipal Matters

Q. Which party is in power of our city government, Democrats or Republicans? Is that majority in all departments? Is the chief of police a Democrat or a Republican? Where is he from? J. E. B.

A. There is no "balance of power" maintained along political lines in the municipal government, nor, for that matter, is such a balance sought. Upon the whys and wherefores of this might be written a learned essay with wide ramifications from the promise that Washington, as a municipality, simply doesn't exist politically.

Commissioner Proctor L. Doughterty, president of the Board of Commissioners, comes from New England and is a Republican. Commissioner Sidney F. Taliaferro comes from Virginia and is a Democrat. Neither is a politician in the sense that they are a part of a party political machine. Col. William B. Ladue, one of the high ranking officers of the Army Engineer Corps and the Engineer Commissioner, is not affiliated with either party. He adheres to that Army tradition which demands that a soldier keep himself free from politics. For that reason he doesn't vote.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, came to Washington from King George County, Va., when a youth. He was too young to register when he left his home, near Fredericksburg, and never has registered.

Q. Why does this city, being the only city of its size in the U. S. A., allow peole to park their cars on the streets all night long? Not only does it keep the good fellow, Mr. Taxpayer, from sleeping, but from parking his own car in front of his door at times. Why use the streets for a garage when the garages are all empty and one can get good space for $12 a month. How can the city ever be beautiful?

WILLIAM DONLING.

A. All night parking is under study by Traffic Director William H. Harland. The question implies that there is a surplus of garage space available for cars which are now parked all night on the streets. This is not so, according to a survey which has been made by the Traffic Bureau. If all the automobiles in Washington had to be put in garages tonight some one would have to solve the problem of putting two cars where there was space for one. In other words, the available garage space falls short by 50 per cent of the space necessary to house all automobiles. This figure was obtained from Mr. Harland, who said in his annual report, recently made public, that "very careful consideration" is being given to the question and that he believed "in the very near future" some action would have to be taken. Nothing will be done hastily and ample notice will be given of whatever action is proposed, Mr. Harland said. He points out that if a ban were placed on parking, because of the inadequacy of existing garage space, rent would increase sharply. In certain neighborhoods it is not at all certain that adequate garage space could be provided. Washington has an automobile for every three of its inhabitants, Harland said. It is inevitable that there will be increased restrictions on parking. But what or when is in the womb of the future. This answer is not intended to express any opinion of The Post on the subject.

Q. Will you kindly publish in your column a list of the Zoning Commission members and their addresses, and oblige yours truly. P. H. F.

A. The Zoning Commission is composed of the three District Commissions, Proctor L. Dougherty, Sidney F. Taliaferro and Col. William B. Ladue. They can be reached at the District Building. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, War Department, officer in charge of public buildings and grounds, and David Lynn, United States Capitol, Architect of the Capital, are the other two members of the zoning commission. The District Commissioners can be reached through the municipal switchboard, Col. Grant, through the War Department, and Mr. Lynn through the Capitol. Maj. Donald A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner of the District, is executive officers of the commission. His offices are in the District Building.

On the basis of the current market price for the Class A Stock of about $49 per share, this dividend yields a return of about $8.90 per share per annum.

Scrip for fractional shares will not be delivered, but will be credited to the stockholder's account until a full share has accumulated. Stockholders can purchase sufficient additional scrip to complete full shares.

M. C. O'KEEFFE, Secretary.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Not Attractive for Investment.

F. K.—What advice would you give regarding holding International Nickel for a higher price? Is there any chance at all of it going much higher than present price?

Answer—On the basis of current earnings and dividends, International Nickel Co. can not be regarded as attractive for investment funds. The company, however, undoubtedly has a bright long term outlook and if you are in a position to hold the stock disregarding present returns, you may be well rewarded for you patience. Demands for nickel are expanding, prices are staple; hence, indications are that earnings will continue to grow even during time that large expenditures are being made in development of Frood mines.

Barnsdall A.

W. F.: I hold 50 shares of Barnsdall A. What do you think are my chances of profit during the balance of this year?

Answer—Barnsdal Corporation reported earnings for the first six months of 1929 equal to $1.83 a share on the A stock, as compared with 80 cents for the similar period of 1928. The company, known as one of the California producers, is an important unit, and the stock has considerable attraction for long-term speculative holding. Can not, however, predict intermediate price swings.

U. S. Realty & Improvement Co.

J. B. G.: Would like some information on U. S. Realty.

Answer—U. S. Realty & Improvement Co. at current quotation appears reasonably priced on basis of share earnings in latest fiscal year. While marked price appreciation is not indicated for the near term, bright outlook for business and profits expansion gives issue exceptional long-pull possibilities. Earnings trend has been steadily upward over a long period of years, with net for twelve months ended April 30, 1929, nearly 3 per cent larger than for preceding year. Business now on books is larger than total completed last year, and indications are that profits will be expanded. The company's financial condition is very strong.

Nash Motors.

F. O. G.—I hold 200 shares of Nash Motors which I bought at 92. Should I sell now and take my loss, or do you think if I hold it, it will recover to the price that I paid for it?

Answer—Stimulated by the introduction of new models, Nash sales have grown markedly in the past year. Profits also have shown pronounced expansion running approximately 100 per cent larger in the six months ended May 31, 1929, than in the same period of the preceding year. From present indications, income for the entire current fiscal year should be in the neighborhood of $8, compared with the regular $6 dividend. Currently selling at about ten times estimated 1929 earnings and yielding over 7 per cent, its record to date compares favorably with that of any other motor car organizatin, and its chances for future success, due to strong management and exceptionally liquid financial position is much better than average. You now have the salient facts about the company which can be gathered from its earnings reports and balance sheets. It is impossible, however, for this column to predict the fluctustions in the price of the stock in the near future.

Standard Oil of New Jersey.

L. A. P.: Please advise which stock is a better buy today for an investment, Standard Oil of New Jersey or Gulf, Mobile & Northern common.

Answer—Standard Oil of New Jersey has unquestioned standing as an investment security, and it should be preferred to the other issue mentioned.

An Uncertain Speculation.

L. M.—I bought 50 shares of Archer Daniels Midland at $35. It is down about five points, was advised at the time was good buy. Any information you can give me on this stock will be appreciated.

Answer — Increasing competition has recently sharply curtailed earnings for Archer-Daniels-Midland Co. Company's net earnings for six months period ended March 2, 1929, showed a decline of approximately 23 per cent in comparison with figure for corresponding period in 1928. Is considered an uncertain speculation.

Wool Associations To Get Big Loan

Member of Farm Board Says $9,000,000 Is to Be Advanced.

(Associated Press.)

Federal Intermediate Credit Banks are committed to lend approximately $9,000,000 to farmers' cooperative wool growers associations to facilitate marketing during the year.

H. Paul Bestor, commissioner of the Federal Farm Loan Board, who made the announcement yesterday, said greater use is being made of the banks this year than in any other since their establishment in 1923.

The $9,000,000 is to be loaned to eight wool marketing organizations, located chiefly in the Middle West and on the Pacific Coast, including the State associations of Wyoming, Utah, Montana, Nevada, Colorado and North Dakota; and to the cooperative growers, with headquarters at Portland, Oreg.

Danville Doctors Decry Diet Habit

Practice Termed Harmful Without Physician's Supervision.

Danville, Va., Sept. 15.—Danville medical practitioners are reported to be concerned over the indiscriminate indulgence by women in the so-called "eighteen day diet" which is spreading in Danville, according to City Health Officer R. W. Garnett.

The diet, without securing advice of physicians, is depreciated, the health officer says, because no one diet is suitable to all women, he claims. The profession also is concerned in this connection with recent statistics showing an upward trend in the tuberculosis infection rate among girls and young women which has been noted since weight reduction became popular.

The diet is said to guarantee the loss of 9 pounds if adhered to.

State of Minas Geraes

(United States of Brazil)

Secured External Gold Loan of 1929, Series A, 6½% Bonds

Dated September 1, 1929 Due September 1, 1959

The Bonds of this Loan will be specifically secured by a first lien upon the Coffee Export Tax of the State.

Interest payable March 1 and September 1. Coupon bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal only. Principal and interest payable in New York City in United States gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness, at the Head Office of The National City Bank of New York, Fiscal Agent, without deductions for any present or future taxes of the State of Minas Geraes or of the United States of Brazil. Principal and interest also payable in London, England, in sterling, at the option of the holder, either at the City Office of The National City Bank of New York, or at the Counting House of J. Henry Schröder & Co., at the fixed rate of exchange of 4.8665; and collectible at the office of Mendelssohn & Co. in Amsterdam, Netherlands, in guilders, at the then current buying rate of the said Mendelssohn & Co. for sight exchange on New York City.

These bonds, authorized by State Law No. 1061, dated August 16, 1929, and issued pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 9142, dated September 6, 1929, will be the direct obligations of the State of Minas Geraes. The Contract provides for a semi-annual cumulative sinking fund, sufficient to redeem the entire issue by maturity, which will begin operating March 1, 1930, and will be applied to redeem bonds through drawings by lot only at 100. The Bonds are callable as a whole but not in part, on September 1, 1934, or any interest date thereafter, on thirty days notice, at 100.

The following summary is based upon the prospectus letter signed by His Excellency, Antonio Carlos Ribeiro de Andrada, President of the State of Minas Geraes, to which reference is made for detailed information:

The State of Minas Geraes is a self-governing member of the Brazilian Federation, its relation to the Central government being similar, in many respects, to that of the sovereign states of the United States of America to the Federal Government. It is situated in the approximate geographical center of Brazil, in a temperate climate and at a relatively high elevation above sea level. The most important agricultural products are coffee, corn, rice, beans, potatoes, wheat, cotton, sugar cane and tobacco. The State has an area of 221,861 square miles, slightly smaller than that of the State of Texas, and is the largest Brazilian state in point of population with 7,308,853 inhabitants, according to the latest estimate. While the State has no sea coast, it is connected with the ports of Santos, Rio de Janeiro, Victoria and Bahia by railroads, having over 4,915 miles of track within its own boundaries.

State Law No. 1061 of August 16, 1929, authorizes a total issue of Bonds limited to an amount not to exceed £5,000,000 sterling, or its equivalent in gold coin of the United States of America at the fixed rate of exchange of $4.8665 per pound sterling, and provides that all the Bonds issued thereunder, of which these Series A Bonds form a part, will be specifically secured by a first lien upon the Coffee Export Tax, the largest single item of revenue of the State of Minas Geraes. This tax during the last five years has yielded an average return equivalent to $4,579,342, as compared with $1,853,647, required for service upon the entire authorized amount, computed on the basis of the terms of this issue. Should the proceeds of the Coffee Export Tax in any fiscal year produce less than an amount of one and one-half times the annual service of all the bonds of the loan, the State undertakes to pledge another tax or other taxes sufficient to make up the deficiency.

The proceeds of this Loan will be utilized for purposes designed to increase the economic productivity of the State.

Prudent and careful management of the State's finances has been characteristic of successive administrations in Minas Geraes. Since 1915 there has been a surplus of revenues over expenditures in every year except two. The income of the State has increased from $4,600,800 in 1915 to a high point of $21,624,054 in 1928. The debt service of the State is comparatively light, being less than 12% of ordinary revenues in 1928.

Application will be made to list these Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange

We offer these Bonds, if, as and when issued to and received by us, subject to the approval of our counsel, Messrs. Shearman & Sterling, New York City, and Dr. Richard P. Momsen, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Delivery in the form of interim certificates of The National City Company is expected on or about September 24, 1929.

Price 87 and interest, to yield 7.60% to maturity

$1,000,000 of this issue will be publicly offered in The Netherlands by Mendelssohn & Co., Nederlandsche Handel-Maatschappij, and Pierson and Co., Amsterdam.

Opera Airs Will Go on Air Tonight

Great Works Highlights to Be Broadcast; Hard Political Series Changed to Monday; Beck to Talk Over WMAL.

The high lights of a dozen of the world's greatest operas, presented by four Metropolitan Opera Company stars, a chorus and a symphony orchestra under the direction of Gennaro Papi, will be broadcast in the General Motors Family Party tonight. The concert, continuing through a full hour, will be of a new type in operatic presentations in that the program builds carefully to a dramatic climax with the four stars singing the quartet from Verdi's "Rigoletto."

Aida Doninelli, soprano; Dorothea Flexer, contralto; Armand Tokatyan, tenor, and George Cehanovsky, barytone, constitute the quartet. Each has made a distinct place in music during the last three seasons of the Metropolitan.

The complete program follows:

"Coronation March" from "La Prophete" (Meyerbeer), orchestra; "Spinning Wheel Quartet" from "Martha" (Flotow), quartet and orchestra; overture to "The Secret of Suzanne" (Wolf-Ferrari), orchestra; Barcarolle from "Tales of Hoffmann" (Offenbach), soprano and contralto duet with orchestra; Polovtsian Dance No. 2, from "Prince Igor" (Borodin), chorus and orchestra; prize song from "Die Meistersinger" (Wagner), tenor and orchestra; "Dance of the Buffoons," from "The Show Maiden" (Rimsky-Korsakoff), orchestra; "Slander's Whisper," from "The Barber of Seville" (Rossini), barytone and orchestra; "Easter Hymn," from "Cavalleria Rusticana" (Mascagni), soprano and orchestra and chorus; "Dance of the Hours," from "La Gioconda" (Ponchielli), orchestra; quartet from "Rigoletto" (Verdi), quartet and orchestra, and processional march from "The Queen of Sheba" (Goldmark), chorus and quartet.

Floyd Gibbons, noted war correspondent, will continue his discussion and analysis of the present situation in the Near East, where Arabs are in revolt in his broadcast talk through WRC at 9:30 o'clock. This week Gibbons will discuss the importance of control of areas in the Near East to Great Britain. He also will introduce into his talk the account of the death of Edward Albert Woodbridge, the British flier, who shot down Baron von Richthofen, famous German war ace.

Beethoven's infrequently played "Polacca" from his "Opus No. 8" will be featured by Ludwig Laurier and his string ensemble in the broadcast of Slumber Music, which will be heard at 10:15 o'clock. Other selections include the overture to "Boccaccio," Suppe; selection from "The Three Twins," Hoschna; "La Zingard," Bohm; selection from "Rigoletto," Verdi; "Plaisir d'Amour," Martini, and "Japanese Reverie," Bartlett.

The new political series, "Back of the News in Washington," by William Hard, has been changed to 6:45 o'clock on Monday evenings. Hard will speak for fifteen minutes over a national network. George F. Hicks announces this presentation.

Franklyn Baur and Vaughn de Leath will be assisted by an orchestra in presenting the "Voice of Firestone" program at 7 o'clock.

James M. Beck, former Solicitor General of the United States, and at present a member of the House of Representatives from Pennsylvania, will be heard at 8:30 o'clock from the studios of WMAL when he speaks in Washington under the sponsorship of the American Bar Association, on "The Constitution." A recognized authority on the Constitution and on constitutional law, Beck's address is delivered on the eve of the 142d anniversary of the ratification of the Constitution of the United States on September 17, 1787, and should be of interest to every member of the radio audience.

Francis T. Hunter, William Tilden's partner in many hard fought tennis battles and one of America's outstanding players, will give his impressions of tennis as a sport in a short talk broadcast during the program heard from WMAL between 9 and 9:30 o'clock.

Starting today, WMAL will present a new morning feature—"Opening the Morning's Mail." Mary and John, husband and wife, arrange to read the morning's mail together, interspersing the letter reading with musical records. Their dialogue will be comment on the letters received—some personal and some commercial, such an assortment as makes up the mail of the average American home. The act will be presented each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Workers' School to Open Class.

A class in the study of "Capitalist Production" will be opened at the Workers' School, 805½ Tenth street northwest, Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, with E. Wallach, former teacher of economics in the labor schools of New York, in charge. The first of the three volumes of "Capital," by Karl Marx, will be used as a textbook.

What Today Means to You

"VIRGO."

If September 16 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 8:50 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to 11:15 p. m.

The astrological influences for this day are energizing, and the rewards of effort and determination may be expected. Business prospects show a change in the right direction. A friend or relative of the opposite sex may cause temporary annoyance.

The child born on this September 16 will be very conscientious, and will be faithful to its duties, even though they be irksome. It will be different and slightly impetuous, but in the main, tender, kind-hearted and loving.

Achievements written down in the initials of dollars and cents may not be yours, but you can create a smile in the heart of those who meet you. This may not be spectacular, but it is something to build happiness in the human soul. Your good cheer is your greatest asset.

You are a law-abiding, earnest individual to live a sincere and virtuous life. You aim to harm no one by action or word. You never gain your ends by foul means; you mind your own business, and like others to do the same. You do not brood over things; you do not harbor resentment. On the other hand, you do not let others walk upon you—if any one has mistreated you in any way, you "beard the lion in his den," and fight it out face to face. When you bury a hatchet, it is not dug up by you again.

There are few women "Penelopes" today, but the women born on this date possess many of her virtues—you have undying faith, constancy of love, and patience. You would wait and wait for the person whom you believe to be your true love.

You are a kind neighbor, a loyal friend, and devoted in your family. You are a slave to whatever you believe to be your duty.

Successful people born on September 16:

Fight Seen On Merger Law Repeal

A forerunner of what is believed will be a determined fight to have section 17, the antimonopoly clause of the radio act, preventing the merging of radio and cable interests, repaled, was the disavowal yesterday by Judge Ira E. Robinson, chairman of the commission, of a recent urging of the repeal to Senator Couzens by B. M. Webster, jr., general counsel of the commission. Judge Robinson declared that Webster was simply expressing his personal opinion and that what he said in no way committed the commission.

Although there had been rumors for a week or more that certain of the commissioners intended "getting out from under" in so far as any impression might have been given that they were in step with him, the issue was precipitated by Oswald F. Schuette, executive secretary of the Radio Protective Association, addressing the following letter to Judge Robinson:

"It is our understanding that the publicity machinery of the Federal Radio Commission has been used to circulate a statement by your general counsel, urging Congress to repeal the antitrust provisions of the radio act of 1927. Has your commission sanctioned this proposal to repeal such important sections of this statute?"

To which the judge replied:

"You are advised that the statement in question and the letter transmitting the suggested amendments to Senator Couzens represent only the personal opinion of the general counsel. As to your question, 'Has your commission sanctioned this proposal to repeal such important sections of this statute (the antitrust provisions of the radio act of 1927)?' the answer is 'No.' A proposed repeal of the sections of the law referred to is purely a matter for legislative consideration—not within the province of this commission."

Apparently none were more surprised by the wide publication of what Judge Robinson describes as Webster's personal views that the radio commissioners themselves.

The inside story is that, though, as Schuette alleges, the publicity machinery of the Federal Radio Commission was used to circulate the statement, Commissioner W. D. L. Starbuck, who was supposed to be in charge of the commission's publicity, did not know anything about the Webster statement until he saw it in the newspapers.

Close on the heels of Webster's suggestion came the much more vigorous attack on the antimonopoly provision of the radio act by the standing committee on radio laws of the American Bar Association, of which Louis Caldwell, formerly general counsel of the commission, is chairman. The report, made after an extensive study of radio legislation and problems, urged the complete repeal of both section 13 and section 17 of the radio act.

"Section 13 is a constant threat to the foreign communication system of the United States," the lawyers said, while Section 17 "rests upon a misconception as to the nature of radio reception and its relation to wire communication."

Such a stand of course stirred the independent radio manufacturers to an even greater anger and made it almost inevitable that the radio commissioners would have to say something.

Testimony given by Col. Sosthenes Behn, president of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., at a hearing last spring before the Interstate Commerce Committee during the communications inquiry, revealed that the International Corporation stands ready to buy the Radio Communications Co., Inc., for $40,000,000 in International stock, which at the present market value would be $100,000,000. In fact, such an agreement had been reached pending the approval of the Government, he said.

With such a merger the present so-called "radio trust" would be small in comparison. Yet its proponents advocate that only such a merger will enable the American communication companies to compete successfully with the British as Great Britain has permitted its cable, wire and wireless interests to consolidate.

Jane Claire INTERPRETS the MODE

"Croissant," an afternoon dress in black crepe de Chine, trimmed in three shades of gray. (Courtesy of Philippe et Gaston, Paris).

The Haute Couture, individually and collectively, is holding its breath! For nobody knows—nobody—what will be miladi's reaction to the summer collections of 1929 showing styles for the winter of '29 and '30.

For they are radical collections, basically. Not in goodness knows how many years have the couturiers launched such definite changes. Not that they were unexpected. For several seasons now we have been following and predicting for you the gradual evolution, which was slowly but surely bringing back the normal waistline, and a definitely marked one.

For years, waist lines have been a myth. Feminine anatomy being what it is, a line around the hips couldn't very well be a waist line, now, could it?

Bit by bit, the couturiers have been toying with it. First they suggested it with an incurving bodice, leaving the waist line a hip line. Then they moved it up ever so slightly. Then they began using two waist lines, cleverly camouflaged, or a sash that was a bit of both.

That touch of returning waistline has pleased, obviously, or it would have been abandoned ere this. So the couturiers, who can't afford to stand still, have decided to face the issue squarely, and the summer collections of 1929 for winter wearing will go down in history as the season the waist line recovered its pristine glory. And that, don't you see, forcibly brings with it a whole new silhouette.

It is when one sees such a gown as "Croissant" that one realizes to what artistic lengths modern styles have gone. The symmetry, the grace of draping, the harmony, the intricacy of technique! Never before in the costume history of the world has there been anything of the sort. The nearest approach to modern-day feminine modes was the Grecian draperies, but they, following as they did such a rigid simplicity, almost lacked imagination—today over 8,000 French, German, Viennese, British and American couturiers each develop more subtle and intricate ways of draping the feminine form. The results are offered four times a year, to the tune of 2 to 400 models.

And the black crepe de chine afternoon dress, novelly trimmed in three shades of gray, which Philippe et Gaston permitted us to sketch for you today is a delightful example of the intrinsic value of the mode.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

The Man and the Manicure.

Some of the wives who complain about their husbands are right, but Madge is wrong. Madge, just a few months ago, was one of those beautifully groomed business girls who, along with being a feast for the eye, are also models of business efficiency. They know exactly how to get rid of a business pest, and how to cement a business contract. They know what to say and the precise moment at which to say it.

But for some reason, when they marry, their technic forsakes them. They flounder about quite helplessly in a home and all too often give up and return to business, believing that love is not for them. Madge is the type. Madge, in her office days, did not argue with the chief. She listened, weighed his arguments, forestalled criticisms by anticipating them and preventing them, and in a crisis kept her head and held her own. But now listen to Madge, the wife:

"If you had given up $40 a week to do general housework for a man who had been on his knees to you for four years, and then had to stand polite comments on less-than-perfect omelettes, and even on your personal appearance, would you conclude, as I have, that you were not fitted for the intricate demands of matrimony, and return to your own world and let him go his own way?

"I never pretended to be a cook, and have awful luck with omelettes, his daily breakfast. When I make any apology he is so cool I can see he considers I am either indifferent about perfecting my cooking or too lazy to try. I am nervous from the moment I wake in the morning, dreading the outcome of his darned omelette.

"On top of that, last night we went out to play bridge, and when we got back he handed me $5 and said, 'That is for manicures and nothing else, and when it is used up let me know, as I want your hands to look as well as other women's hands.' Naturally there was a quarrel; I told him I would never go anywhere with him again. My hands were once very much admired, as I could keep them beautiful when my hardest work was being agreeable to office visitors. But I am now a general houseworker and my hands show it. He left the $5 on his dresser. It can stay there forever, although I am thinking of nailing it up on the wall over the sink.

"What does a man mean by expecting a woman to keep his kitchen utensails scoured and keep her hands lily white at the same time? I feel far worse about my hands than he does. I feel, in fact, that I have scoured my last pan, and will probably be back in an office within the month. At this moment he means less than nothing in my life, and it would take more than a $5 bill to make him look O. K. to yours truly. What does a self-respecting human being do under such conditions?

"MADGE."

She keeps her head, Madge, and keeps her husband. Go back to the office, by all means, and get a maid to do the work. It is really possible to keep manicured and keep house. Thousands of girls are doing it, just as thousands are mastering the art of making omelettes. But if you break nails in the course of your daily tasks, and rack your nerves over omelettes that wither before your very eyes, then return to the office and hire a cook.

Your husband is high-handed, but you surely must have noticed this characteristic in those four years of courtship, and you must have cared. If so, salvage your love, and let a cook absorb the shocks of hubby's caustic comments. But get the manicure. Beautiful hands are one of life's delights.

When the Sun Is Eclipsed.

If this newspaper were large enough I should like to show you a correct diagram of the sun, the moon and the earth; but let me tell you why that is not to be done. If we made the earth an inch in diameter, the moon would need to be one-fourth of an inch in diameter. So far, so easy. But the sun would need to be 100 inches from side to side. That would be more than 8 feet.

There would be still another trouble. To show both size and distance properly, the moon would need to be placed 30 inches from the earth. The sun would have to be placed 968 feet away!

Because of these things, we can not have a really truthful diagram. The best I can do is to tell you what the diagram ought to look like; and to picture the general idea of an eclipse of the sun.

An eclipse comes when the moon gets in the way of the sun's light. How can the moon, which is small compared to the sun, hide the sun's light? It is because the moon is much closer than the sun. If you hold a penny 6 inches from one eye (with the other eye closed) you can hide the sun. Thus the moon hides the giant light of day.

My grandmother once told me of a total eclipse of the sun before the Civil War. She was living in the South. Chickens went to roost; but that was not the most unusual thing. Many of the negroes thought that "the world was coming to an end." In that belief some of them mounted upon barns and other high places, making ready to fly away with the wings they believed they would be given.

If the moon were a hundred times as great in diameter, the whole earth would enjoy a total eclipse of the sun. As it is, the moon hides the light completely only along certain strips of land. During different eclipses of the sun there are different "pathways of darkness." During one eclipse I was able to make out the moon's shadow only by the use of dark glass.

WORK ON BRIDGE

Bridge brevities, a pamphlet by Milton C. Work, the world's pre-eminent authority on Auction and Contract Bridge, free. This valuable pamphlet, containing concise suggestions for players of both games, will be sent with the compliments of this paper to readers of Mr. Work's articles who request it. Requests must be addressed to Milton C. Work, care of this paper, and must include a stamped (2c stamp) self-addressed return envelope. Read Mr. Work's articles on Auction and Contract. Every day exclusively in The Post.

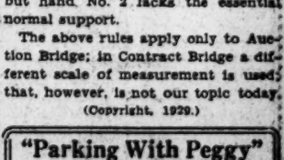
Last Monday we considered the requisites for assisting partner's No Trump bid, and today we shall see what strength is necessary to justify assisting partner's suit bid. It is more complicated than the assist of partner's No Trump, although in one particular it is similar. The raise can be made from two to three (regardless of whether partner's two was bid originally, or after he had first bid one) with less strength than the raise from one to two. While the former raise is a bid for nine tricks and the latter for only eight, the former is much safer because when partner bid two he guaranteed that his hand had a minimum of six tricks, when he bid only one he showed only two high-card tricks with the probability of two more. Furthermore, the one bid may have been made with a four-card suit.

To raise from one to two, the raising hand needs normal support and two probable tricks. Normal support is any three cards of partner's suit, or two when one of them is the Ace or King, or when the two are the Queen and Jack. Queen-Ten is on the borderline and in Auction Bridge is generally considered normal support.

A probable trick for the purpose of assisting partner's bid, means an Ace or King or Queen of partner's suit; or a side Ace, or a side King protected with small cards. Such protected King, however, is not a "probable trick" if its suit has been bid by an adversary on its left.

A blank suit is worth more than one probable trick, a singleton a little less; a Queen-Jack of the same suit is not a probable trick, it is however, an element of strength; but Queen without Jack or Jack without Queen are not assessable assets.

Let us look at two North hands:



If South bid one Heart and West overcalled with two Clubs, North should bid two Hearts with No. 1, but should pass with No. 2. Each hand has the two probable tricks (one of the necessary elements for the raise), but hand No. 2 lacks the essential normal support.

The above rules apply only to Auction Bridge; in Contract Bridge a different scale of measurement is used; that, however, is not our topic today.

NATS ROUTED BY TIGERS, THEN BATTLE TO DRAW

Cubs Cut Flag Gap to One Victory

Hornsby Hits 37th Homer; Tolson Gets 4 Hits.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Chicago trounced Brooklyn 13 to 4, here today and moved within one victory of the National League pennant.

The Cubs can become mathematically certain if they win tomorrow or if Pittsburgh drops one of its two games with Philadelphia, even if Chicago loses.

Charley Root pitched his seventeenth victory of the season as the Cubs assaulted Newsome, McWeeny, Morrison and Ballou for 18 hits. Hornsby drove out his thirty-seventh home run in the sixth. Tolson got four hits in five trips to the plate. Buck Newsome, the Robin recruit, was hammered from the box in the first inning under a barrage of five hits, two bases on balls helping to score the 6 runs that were chased over the plate in that inning.

Frederick Leads Robin Attack With Homer.

Brooklyn Fight Off Indefinitely, Giving Philadelphia Card Spotlight of Week With Bass, Santiago Featuring.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Another postponement of the Phil Scott-Victorio Campolo bout has robbed the national boxing calendar of its principal attraction this week.

Indefinite postponement of the bout, scheduled for Ebbets Field on Wednesday, was announced today by the office of Humbert J. Fugazy. The postponement was asked by Campolo, whose training has been badly interfered with by an an injury to his back. The giant Argentine asked that the bout be set back to a week tomorrow night so that he could have a few more days in which to train.

Fugazy indicated he was agreeable to this program and will ask the New York State Athletic Commission to approve the new date.

Attractive Card Booked At Philadelphia.

With this card off the books, Philadelphia will take the fistic spot light for the week. Taylor and Gunwis have an all-star card at the Phillies ball park on Wednesday night. Benny Bass, Philadelphia junior lightweight, meets Armando Santiago, of Cuba, in the ten-round main bout. Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle Negro lightweight, is matched with King Tut, Minneapolis slugger, in the semifinal. Pete Mebom, Seminole Indian junior lightweight, tackles Johnny Fear, of Cleveland, and Billy Wallace, of Philadelphia, meets Pinky Kaufman, Hartford, Conn., lightweight, in two other ten-rounders.

At the Chicago Stadium, Friday, Tuffy Griffith, Sioux City heavyweight, who knocked out Ludwig Haymann, of Germany, here last week, meets George Cook, of Australia, in a ten-rounder. Al Fay vs. Al Friedman, and Salvatore Ruggirello vs. Pete Wistort are the other feature bouts.

Bushy Graham, of Utica, N. Y., and Andy Martin, Boston featherweight, clash in the Boston Garden's wind-up on Friday night.

St. Joes Gain Unlimited Honors

Hilleary, Ratke Hit Homers; Taylor Bests Adair.

PLAYING before the largest crowd to witness a sandlot baseball game in this section in recent years, the St. Joseph A. C. Nine yesterday defeated the Dixie Pig team of Bladensburg, 5-3, for its fourth Capital City League unlimited championship. Approximately 4,500 people witnessed the spirited battle between the well matched teams meeting on even terms in the final game of the long season's campaign.

In beating back the Bladensburg threat, the Saints had to show their best baseball and were never certain of victory until the final out had been recorded.

Eager to see the game that slated to end a long, spirited battle for the title, the orderly throng formed a human wall about the playing field on the North Ellipse, with the result that two home runs into the crowd, which encircled the outfield, figured prominently in the scoring of the two teams.

Home Runs in Crowd Aid Both Teams.

Hilleary's homer into the mob in the fifth with Berger on base, pushed the Saints to the front, but Ratke duplicated the feat in the sixth for the Dixie Pigs with Stahl on the paths. The rivals were deadlocked going into the seventh, when the Saints countd a lone tally, which proved to be the deciding one.

Yesterday's victory brought to the St. Joseph Club its fourth championship in the past seven years. In 1923 and 1924 the Saints were returned champions In 1927 they regained top honors after two years of outside competition. Last season they finished close up to the Georgetown A. C.

Both Blackie Adair, of the Bladensburg Team, and Shaut Taylor, of the Saints, gave sterling pitching exhibitions, each going the route. Although Taylor gained a slight edge his rival made a game bid for victoyr over the heavy-hitting champions. Each team gathered eight hits.

Taylor Invincible After Rathes' Homer.

Timely hitting enabled both teams to get a counter in the first frame. From then until the fifth, when Hilleary's homer put the Saints two runs in front, no scoring bids of consequence were made. Ratke's circuit blow evened matters in the sixth. Taylor was invincible the rest of the route, while Adair wavered a trifle in the seventh to give up the deciding counter. The champs added one for extra precaution in the final session.

Orell Mitchell, Huck Hilleary, Huck Stahl, Eddie Dove and Ratke were the shining lights in the respective offensives of the two teams.

Maj. Segrave's Boat Takes Volpi Trophy

Venice, Italy, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Maj. H. O. D. Segrave piloted his Miss England to victory in the finals of the Count Volpi trophy motorboat race here today. The Miss America V, Segrave's only rival, withdrew after the second lap. The Miss England covered the six laps of 30 kilometers in 16 minutes 2 2-5 seconds.

Harry Wills Fouls Foe; Mob Assails Opponent

Mexico City, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Andres Castano, of Spain, successfully defended his Mexican heavyweight championship tonight when he won from Harry Wills, erstwhile "black menace" of American rings, on a foul in the first round of their ten-round bout.

Wills outclassed the Spaniard in the first round but made the serious mistake of hitting Castano on the jaw after the bell rang. Wills apparently had not heard the gong. Castano, after momentary hesitation, dropped to the canvas and then refused to proceed with the bout. The judges immediately awarded him the decision on a foul.

The crowd of 20,000 in the First National Stadium booed lustily and threw seat cushions at Castano, who was escorted from the ring by police. Wills was given an ovation.

Seven Errors Hurt Cause In Opener

Second Ends in 3-All Tie After Tigers Cop First, 16-2.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

A GOODLY gathering of 14,000 or more crowded through the turnstiles at the Griffith Stadium yesterday to see the Nationals and Tigers in hteir battle for fifth place in the standing. All they drew was a lot of grief in the first game of the bargain-day bill and solace in the fact that there was not more grief in the second encounter.

Instead of a battle, the opener was a rout, with the home team never in the running and finally going down on the short end of a 16-to-2 score. The nightcap was a real battle, but the best the Nationals could draw from it was a 3-all tie which ended because of darkness after the eighth.

Earl Whitehill, nobby little Tiger southpaw, who always has been an enigma to the Nationals, held them to but six hits in the first game, while his mates were benefiting from sixteen off Myles Thomas, Bob Burke and Edward Wineapple, the latter making his debut here. Seven errors were charged to the home team.

Marberry and Uhle in Mound Duel.

It looked as though the Nationals would win the second game, which was a pitchers' duel between Fred Marberry and George Uhle. The Tigers got away to a two-run lead in the first inning, but the Nationals overcame this and went one to the good, only finally to get a draw at the finish when Marberry temporarily weakened in the eighth. Two good plays by Buddie Myer saved the draw for the Nats in this session.

From a Washington standpoint, the less said about the first game the better, for the Nationals were never in the running. Although pitchers Thomas, Burke and Wineapple were not puzzles and a total of sixteen hits were registered from their combined offerings, the blame is not all theirs, for seven errors were charged to their mates and, as a result, no less than twelve of the Tigers' sixteen runs were unearned.

Where the Tigers deserve credit is in being able to take advantage of the opportunities thus offered. In the first, for instance, after an error which would have retired the side, came H. Rice's double and a walk. The Nat shortstop then booted another and Hargrave's homer followed. This frame netted six runs, more than enough to win—but the Tigers took advantage of two more miscues, two passes and a hit batsman to double their total in the sixth. Again but three hits were needed, but two were big ones—a triple by Akers and a double by Hargrave.

Wineapple's Debut Marred By Errors.

Detroit's other runs were scored off Wineapple, although the rookie's big league debut was more of a success than these figures would indicate. Three errors were made while he was tolling, two by himself, and

KENTUCKY CLASSIC MAY DECIDE BEST JUVENILE

Jockey Club Stakes Is Magnet

Special to The Washington Post.

LOUISVILLE, KY., Sept. 15.—The awarding of the 2-year-old championship of America again apparently awaits the running of the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes. This event, of an estimated value of $40,000, will be decided on Saturday, October 5. The Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes usually has provided the winter favorite for the Kentucky Derby of the following year. In 1927, Reigh Count captured the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, ruled a heavy stake and won this year's Derby, all in impressive style. Last year Clyde Van Dusen annexed the 2-year-old stake and won this year's Derby, although he was not the favorite.

The Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes this year probably will be witnessed by the largest crowd in its history. A hundred thousand visitors are expected here for the national convention of the American Legion the first four days of the week of the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes and sufficient numbers are expected to remain over for its running to set new attendance figures.

Churchill Downs Meet Opens September 28.

The Churchill Downs autumn meeting will open on Saturday, September 28, and continue eleven racing days. The legion convention will open on Monday, September 30, and all members of the American Legion and the Women's Auxiliary will be admitted free to Churchill Downs during the four days of the convention. Arrangements have been made to care for an attendance close to that of the Kentucky Derby on these days.

The distance of the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, 1 mile, proves the real test of the season's 2-year-olds. The fast-breaking sprinters which may have prevailed on speed alone in the earlier events at short distances must give way to the combination of speed and stamina that marks the champion race horse.

At this time Harry Payne Whitney seems to hold a decided advantage in the quest for juvenile honors. His Boojum and Whichone have clearly proved their superiority in 2-year-old competition thus far and there is no good reason to believe that they will not go on to triumph at a greater distance. Boojum, winner of the Hopeful at Saratoga, was regarded as the best of the year and was unbeaten until two weeks ago at Belmont Park when he succumbed to his stablemate. Previously Boojum had beaten Whichone, but on that occasion Whichone was conceding eight pounds.

Whichone and Boojum To Compete.

Whichone captured the Saratoga Special and best real stake fields in purse races over the New York tracks. His efforts have indicated that he fancies a route, and as the distance is lengthened he may prove a better colt than Boojum, although the latter has already been enrolled in the turf hall of fame as the holder of the American record for 6½ furlongs. In the Hopeful he stepped the distance in 1:17.

Although the Whitney pair undoubtedly will rule favorite for the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, they will face plenty of opposition, and over the mile route may have trouble with several colts which they have outfooted in sprint races. One of these is the Fair Stable's inconsistent Sarazen II. This colt looked like a champion early in the year, and on occasions has shown flashes on this same form. If he runs his best race at Churchill Downs, it will take a mighty colt to beat him. Among Sarazen II's triumphs are the Tremont Stakes at Aqueduct and the Youthful Stakes at Jamaica.

Black Majesty, Caruso Good Coe Hand.

Other Easterners with unusual claims are W. R. Coe's Black Majesty, winner of the Juvenile Stakes at Belmont Park, and Mr. Coe's Caruso, winner of the Grab Bag Handicap and United States Hotel Stakes at Saratoga, and the Thomas Curran Memorial Stakes at Washington Park.

The West will be well represented by a number of high-class 2-year-olds. Probably the best is the great Alcibiades, in the stable of Hal Price Headley. This filly, was slightly used during the spring, but won the Debutante Stakes at Churchill Downs and the Clipsetta Stakes at Latonia. She was regarded as the superior of the colts performing in the West.

J. N. Camden will send to the post his good colt Sydney, winner of the Chicago Juvenile Handicap at Hawthorne. LeMar Stock Farm's colors will be carried by Morsel, winner of the Harold Stakes at Latonia. The Audley Farm will be represented by Gallant Knight.

Army Polo Play Will Start This Afternoon

The annual high-goal polo tournament of the War Department gets under way today with two games scheduled to be played on the Polo Grounds in Potomac Park. The first game between the Sixteenth Field Artillery and the War Department Yellows is slated to begin at 3 o'clock, with the second affair between the Third Cavalry and the War Department Whites to start at 4:30.

The teams will line up as follows:

Sixteenth Field Artillery—Lieut. McClure, Maj. Parker, Lieut. Benson, Capt. Maraist.

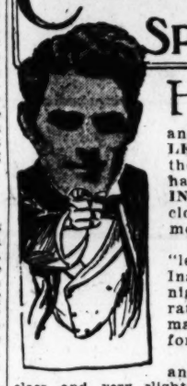
COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT H. COLLYER



HOT—well lissen.

The man what slipped me this info ran a temperature of 402—yes four hundred and two, and still sheatin'. None other than LEAH JEAN, baby out at Lincoln Fields, that has the rail birds cuckoo, woosey and fit for the old hatch. Personally I like her extra well with FLYING EXPRESS the contender. BOUGAINVILLE is close up and you may expect considerable improvement from this gee.

GERMAINE CHAVUELOT, direct from the "leaky roof" circuit, is another to be yanked forth. Inasmuch as there was oodles of kale for her overnight, I look for plenty of action. POLITA won rather impressively last time and a repeater will make her formidable. BLUE BLOOD and CLEORA for what is left.

Pretty tight fit in the fifth between PRINCETON and KLINGSTONE, the latter possesses a bit of class and very slight improvement over that last effort will make him a winner.

In the closing dash I am going to yank another wash day sleeper forth. It is MOROCCO. On the occasion of his last appearance he was all but knocked down and should have won by about ten lengths. Commissions planted in St. Louis and Louisville.

Over at Lexington the old wopsy tiger is none other than Clyde Van Dusen's superior mudder, TORCHILLA. Now, this bird has been given a long careful prep over this track. Is fresh and good and I look for him to be on the Bill Daily end throughout. Plenty of kale for him, if that's what you want to know.

WHISKERY is extra good. On the other hand, the Whitney cast-off wants to go a bit farther, hence it is reasonable to presume today's effort is in the nature of a final prep for next week's stake.

RETORT is good and will favor the track. HADES, a winner last time out at Lincoln Fields, has drawn the rail position, which is a big help when negotiating the futurity course. And up the hill at Lexington THE MOON, if she races the recent morning trials, will prove the contender, with CORA BEACH, COLONEL BELL and DONORA closely bunched.

HUBS SCORE IN SERIES OPENER

Hagerstown Downs Charleroi, M. A. Champs, 12-6.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 15.—The Hagerstown Hubs got the jump on Charleroi in the Tri-state baseball series by winning the inaugural tiff here this afternoon before a crowd of 1,500 fans, who saw the Blue Ridge Kings cop the Middle Atlantic championship, 12 to 6.

Stub Rase, who won 22 and lost 5 games for Cumberland, to win the Middle Atlantic most valuable player award, was elected to do the chucking for the Governors, and was shown little respect by the Blue Ridgers, who bombed his whirlers for sixteen hits, including four round-trip smashes.

Rodgers, Phillips Each Hit 2 Homers.

Splendid pitching also predominated in the triumph of the Hubs. Figert sent to cover under a Charleroi barrage in the seventh, struck out seven batters, and Meola, his successor, wound the third strike past five of the Governors'.

The home-run orgy was topped by Rodgers, of Hagerstown, and Phillips, of Charleroi, each circling the bases twice. Rice, Figert and Rawlings also hit for the circuit.

Showing of Duke Gridmen Encouraging to Coaches

Robeson Proving Sensation as Pass Receiver and in Defense; Brewer, Soph Quarter Back, Also Standing Out Prominently.

Special to The Washington Post.

DURHAM, N. C., Sept. 15.—Early scrimmage sessions at Duke are giving the coaching staff an encouraging line on their men, especially as to the merits of sophomores, from whom much is expected this year.

Glenn Robeson, the pass-receiving sensation of the squad, actually improved in his showing once two teams lined up and the play became spirited.

Not only did Robeson show great form in snatching passes and eluding the defensive men but, when his team took the defensive, he was just as much in evidence. He plays a great game in all departments and seems a good bet for a starter in the big Pitt game here October 5.

Brewer Shows Up Well At Quarter.

But all the glory of the scrimmage sessions does not go to Robeson. Kid Brewer, sophomore quarter back, has displayed great speed in every workout. He is a big man, standing 6 feet and weighing nearly 180 pounds, but is probably the fastest man on the field. Brewer handles himself well at quarterback.

"Buzz" Rosky, veteran end, is showing well in the back fields this year. The coaches have been working him at quarter back and he calls his plays well only half of these runs were earned. Of the six hits he allowed, three were fluky and his showing was one of the most encouraging home features of the game.

NATS TROUNCED, 16-2, THEN TIE TIGERS, 3-3

Whitehill had the Nats practically eating out of his hand despite the fact that he simply loafed along after his mates had given him a commanding lead. He yielded but six hits, two each in the fourth, fifth and sixth, and it took a rather scratchy Texas League double by Goslin to let the Johnsons do their only scoring in this latter inning. This bingle came with two dead after Hayes had singled and Judge had walked and advanced on Sam Rice's out. It scored the pair.

Hargrave was the hitting hero of this fray, getting a homer, two doubles and a single. Goslin and Hayes accounted for two-thirds of the home safeties, with two each.

The Tigers picked up in the second encounter where they left off in the first and greeted Marberry with a two-run rally. Johnson led off with a triple and Gehringer immediately scored him with a double, registering himself a moment later on McManus' single after Alexander had coaxed a pass. In the second, with two in the morgue, Johnson singled and Gehringer inserted a second double, but these blows were wasted, and Marberry then hit his stride and retired the aliens in order in the next three Marberry's Single Propels Run Over.

Meanwhile Uhle granted but one unused hit in the first four sessions, but saw his lead cut in half in the fifth. With one dead, Cronin walked and Hayes and Marberry followed with singles. With the tying marker on second, Uhle managed to check the rally, forcing Judge to loft to center and fanning Rice.

After Marberry had hit McManus and Akers in succession, with two gone in the sixth, and both had been stranded, the Nats took the lead. Myer's triple almost to the score board was the main ingredient of the first run, the second-sacker scoring on a close play at the plate after the catch of West's air sacrifice to Johnson. Then Tate and Cronin singled and Hayes doubled to put the home team one to the good.

Round 8 saw the Harrismen knot the count and it was largely due to two fine plays by Buddie Myer that they did not do more damage, for Stone doubled, Alexander walked, and H. Rice singled to open the round. McManus sacrificed both runners along, but the first of Myer's good plays nipped him at home on Pinch-hitter Fothergill's roller, while the second turned Harry Heilmann's near-hit into a force-out at second, this big fellow having hit for Phillips.

The moon was in evidence when the Nats took their turn at the tee, and when they were retired after West's single had been wasted game was called, making another double-header due tomorrow afternoon.

Hayes and Marberry were Washington's high guns in this contest, with two hits each, while Johnson and Gehringer led the Jungle Cats' attack.

Hadley Will Get Chance Against Detroit Today

Wyatt, Rookie, to Make Debut With Harrismen, "Boss Bucky" Elated Over Newcomers—Hargrave Shows Punch.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

BUCKY HARRIS and his Tigers will be in our midst again this afternoon in a single game, which probably will see Irving Hadley getting another chance as a starting pitcher. Harris plans to use Whitlow Wyatt, one of the several rookies who have joined his team this fall. Wyatt is a speedy right-hander, who was somewhat of a strike-out king with Evansville, of the Three-Eye League, his victims numbering more than 200. In this, his first season as a pro, he won 28 games and lost 6 with Evansville, and is rated as a brilliant prospect. Today's effort will mark his debut in the majors.

Harris, by the way, who was restored to good standing yesterday after a six-day suspension, is most enthusiastic over his next year's chances. "The few rookies who have recently joined us have given me the strongest lineup I have had this season," he said yesterday, "and we still have a number of other promising youngsters coming up.

Pitcher Herring Rated Highly by Harris.

"In addition to Wyatt," Harris continued, "I also have a likely looking flinger in Arthur Herring, a right-hander brought from Oklahoma City, of the Western League. He is a comparatively small but strong fellow who can stand plenty of work and has lots of stuff. He was in 47 games at Oklahoma City, 34 in the first half of the season, and ended with a record of 19 wins and 13 losses. He beat the Red Sox in his only start with us this season, holding them to but 8 hits.

"Bill Akers looks like he might give us the shortstop we have been looking for. He lives up to his name and covers "acres" of ground, and also looks like he might hit. He has looked mighty good since he joined us a little over a week ago. We got him from Beaumont, of the Texas League.

"When you note that we have Harry Heilmann sitting on the bench, you can figure that this lad, Jonathan Stone, now playing left, must be pretty good. We gave him a trial this spring, sent him to Toronto, and recently recalled him. He is a natural left-fielder and so Roy Johnson has been shifted to right, where he looks more at home.

Catcher Hayworth Seen As Comer.

"The only other youngster who has reported this fall," Harris concluded, "is Catcher Ray Hayworth and he looks good, too. If the others we will have for consideration for next spring give us only half as many good prospects as the little bunch now with us, we ought to have a mighty good team next season."

Third Baseman Marty McManus robbed Joe Judge of what appeared to be a sure hit opening the first game for the Nats yesterday. The drive hit to the right of the veteran infielder and he snared it in his gloved hand by a back-hand stab.

Catcher Roy Spencer got back in action in the eighth inning of yesterday's opening game following a short lay-off due to a spiked right thumb. He had the digit tightly bound and the injury did not appear to bother him any.

The Nationals have gotten enough errors out of their systems during the past two days to make them mechanically pure for the balance of the season. They were charged with five miscues in Saturday's game and kicked in seven in yesterday's opener.

"Pinky" Hargrave in Hitting Mood.

"Pinky" Hargrave, the sorrell-topped catcher who did not suit Manager Harris when both were here, certainly pleased his boss in yesterday's opener. All the redhead did with the bat was to crack out a homer, with two on, two doubles and a single, for a total of nine bases.

Pitcher Marberry was in a hitting mood in the second game. In addition to getting two singles, one of which propelled home a run, he hit two Tigers in succession, McManus and Akers, with two gone in the sixth.

Red Sox Take Opener; Drop 2d to Pale Hose

Boston, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The Red and White Hose divided a double-header here today, Boston taking the first game, 5 to 4, and Chicago the second, 3 to 2.

Danny MacFayden managed to hold a five-run lead piled up for him by his mates in the first two innings of the opener, although he was hit freely by the White Sox in the later innngs.

GRID OUTLOO BRIGHTER AT G. W.

New Material Aids Coaches; Expect Better Record.

GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY gridmen, who have just completed their first week of training, do not promise to be another winning local eleven this fall, but they are distinctly in line to better the record of the 1928 edition of the Colonials. Although this is not much of a boast, in view of the fact that last year's Buff and Blue Team took only one game in a schedule of eight, it is at least a sign of the beginning of brighter days for athletic devotees of the downtown school.

For athletics are "in the making" at G. W., and the football team will be but a cradle for the future elevens in the years to come. Although most stress will be undoubtedly laid on the freshman eleven this year, the varsity will be able to boast of some young stars, who will certainly be good for a couple years.

Already the practice sessions have been marked by the performances of "finds" just uncovered at George Washington and who promise to make several regulars of last year's team hustle to retain their jobs. According to those in the know at G. W., at least four men are now showing such ability in the daily workouts at Central Stadium that they have been readily picked by regular side line observers to start in the first game of the season against Manhattan College on October 5.

In the line Purdy, Hardy, Porter and Van Meter, brother of last year's tackle, are showing special promise, while "Duke" White, a husky if there ever was one, seems destined to start with the quartet of ball carriers in the back field.

Although all five men have been in school for some time, only one, Porter, has ever been on the squad before. Porter held down one of the tackle positions in 1927, but was ineligible for play last season.

Merchants Bank Net Team Ties for Lead

By defeating the Metropolitan Bank's tennis team yesterday 2—1, the Merchants Bank Team went into a tie with the losers for the leadership of the league.

Leading in the final set, 8—2, it looked for a while as if the Metropolitans might cop, but a furious rally by the Merchants tied things at 5-all and then went on to win 3 out of the next 4 games.

Summaries:

Callan (Merchants) defeated Burch (Metropolitan), 6—0, 6—3; Windstedt (Metropolitan) defeated Linger (Merchants), 6—2, 6—4; Callan and Linger (Merchants) defeated Burch and Windstedt (Metropolitan), 2—6, 6—3, 8—6.

NEHIS TRIM GEORGETOWN.

Nehi Insects took the measure of the Georgetown Insects yesterday by a score of 11 to 6. Basilliso pitched for the winners and also starred at bat. Tongo also did some heavy hitting while Silvester starred in the field for the Nehis. The victors would like to arrange a game with the Senators for next Sunday. Call North 1932-J.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY TITLE TO TAKOMA TEAM

Tigers Clinch Honor With Victory

Score, 18-3, Over Kensington Firemen; Then Lose, 10-6.

Rockville Wins Two From Friendship; Finishes Second.

THE Takoma Tigers, always a contender but never a champion in days of the past, realized their ambition yesterday when they won the Montgomery County baseball title by defeating the Kensington Firemen, 18 to 3 in the first game of a double-header on the Wheaton diamond. The second encounter went to the Firemen, 10 to 6, but it did not hurt the Tigers' cause, as the first game victory clinched the championship for them, the first ever gained in some ten years of play on the sandlots.

In the other double-header scheduled for the day, the Rockville A. C. finished its series play by gaining second place in defeating the Friendship A. C. twice, 12 to 1, and 9 to 6 on the Rockville diamond. These teams were tied for the runner-up position before yesterday. The series is now concluded and the champion Tigers will play the Prince Georges County series winners as soon as that circuit settles its series, which is still tied between the Mount Rainier and Bowie Nines who split even in a double-header yesterday.

Tigers Bomb Milburn From Mound.

Up against the reputed strongest hurler in the series in Harry Milburn, Kensington Fireman pitcher, the Tigers removed all doubt as to their inability to beat him by scoring from the outset in collecting their eighteen runs. Four of these were registered in the first inning when Povich, first up, singled. Henley sacrificed, James singled, Powell, singled, Mensh walked and Wilson hit a two-bagger.

From then on it was a walk-away for the Suburbanites, who totaled thirteen more runs in the fourth to put the game far beyond the reach of the Firemen, despite the good pitching of Milburn in spots before that time. Johnny Pope was the master arm of the Tigers in their victory. His pitching triumph was a fitting climax for his excellent work during the series. Pope granted but five hits and struck out nine.

The second game went according to dope. Ray Davidson, supposed second best pitcher to be faced by the Tigers, winning over Horace Duffy with plenty to spare. Duffy matched Davidson's work for five innings, but was excused from the mound after the Firemen had hit his offerings too often in the sixth. Baker, pinch-hitting for Duffy brought Heaton Skinner to the slab to finish the game.

Willie Coleman Stars in Double-Header.

After his team got in front, Davidson seemed to get better as the going progressed, even though the Tigers staged a three-run rally in the ninth to no avail. The young left-hander fanned seven.

The Rockville-Friendship games were featured by the excellent hurling performances of Willie Coleman, who not only pitched and won the first game, allowing three hits, but who came to the rescue of his brother, Bud Coleman, in the second pitching the last three innings and stopping the Friendships cold after they had started on scoring rampages which might have won the game for them.

Bowie and Mount Rainier Nines Remain Deadlocked

Split Double Bill Yesterday, 12-6 and 7-2; to Meet in Final Game Next Sunday on Bowie Field.

HAVING split the spoils of a double-header yesterday at Mount Rainier, the Bowie Motor Co. and Mount Rainier nines will clash in a single game at Bowie next Sunday to decide the Prince Georges County unlimited baseball championship. Yesterday's double bill was scheduled to conclude the race but the two teams remained deadlocked and the single game next week will determine the winner.

The Mounts gained a comparatively easy victory in the first game yesterday, 12 to 6, and were similarly treated in the second game, Bowie winning, 7 to 2.

Corkins kept the Bowie hits well scattered in the opener while his mates did some timely hitting against Lefty Jones, until yesterday the leading pitcher of the series. They chased the southpaw in the sixth and did not need the extra counters gleaned off his successor.

Bryner Checks Mounts In Nightcap.

The second engagement was halted in the eighth by darkness. Bryner held the Mounts to four hits in this contest to gain a slight edge over Waple, who yielded but six hits only to get poor support afield.

Play in the deciding game at Bowie next week will start at 2:30 o'clock. Some 3,000 fans witnessed yesterday's battle and an even larger throng is expected for the final fray next Sunday.

CELTICS TRIM NAVAL NINE, 3 TO 2

Gain Partial Revenge for Two Previous Reverses.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Sept. 15.—Scoring two runs in the ninth inning, both on errors, St. Mary's Celtics won the fourth of a five-game series with the Naval Hospital Team of Washington, here today, 3 to 2.

Munson, for the Sailors pitched a masterly game striking out fifteen men and allowing but four hits, but it was his overthrow of first base which allowed the winning run to be scored. Dreifus, for the Celtics, also allowed but four hits, and struck out six.

The Celtics-Naval Hospital series now stands two-all and the deciding game will be played at Baggett's Stadium next Sunday.

PRINTER NINE BESTS BURK TEAM, 6-1

Roudabush Stars as Richmond Champs Are Defeated.

Special to The Washington Post.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 15.—Washington Union Printers, National Typographical baseball champions, conquered the crack amateur title holders from Richmond, Burk and Company, this afternoon at Tate Field, 6 to 1, in a well played and interesting game. A crowd estimated at 8,000, the largest to see a contest here in years was on hand.

Roudabush, on the mound for the Printers, was in fine fettle and held the hard-hitting Burkmen to six hits, all widely scattered. Roudabush not only starred in the role of pitcher, but also played a prominent part in the manufacturing of runs. The stalwart Typo twirler smacked out two hits in four trips to the plate driving in half of his team's tallies.

EVENTS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ARLINGTON CHAMBER TO OPEN NEW OFFICE

Formal Program Will Be Held at Location in Clarendon Today.

ADVANTAGES ARE TOLD

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Plans have been completed for the formal opening of the new offices of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce in the Reese Building on Wilson boulevard, at Clarendon tomorrow.

The new quarters, which occupy the first floor of the building, were made possible by the donation made to the board of directors by Ashton C. Jones, one of its members and one of the small groups who three years ago organized the chamber.

The program, as given out by Executive Secretary P. P. Woodbridge, provides for the opening of the office at 9:30 a. m. In the evening there will be a short program of entertainment to members, their wives and guests, by invitation. The guests will include the executive heads of neighboring chambers of commerce service clubs and other county organizations.

"Being located on the first floor will be of great advantage to us," declared Woodbridge last night. He pointed out that part of the office will be fitted up for meetings of the members and for other activities helpful to chamber of commerce work.

Following the G. O. P. program to the letter, Arlington County Republicans will formally notify Louis A. MacMahon of his nomination as the party's candidate for the Virginia House of Delegates in the November election, according to an announcement by J. C. Spaulding, county chairman.

The notification ceremonies will take place at MacMahon's home, 201 Hayes street, Clarendon, Tuesday, September 24. L. C. McNemar, who presided as permanent chairman of the convention at which MacMahon was nominated, will deliver the notification address and the nominee will make an acceptance speech outlining his platform and policies. Several State party officials and members of Congress are expected to attend.

All Arlington County Republicans and the general public have been invited to assemble on the front porch of MacMahon's home and participate in the ceremony.

The following will compose the notification committee: Chairman L. C. McNemar; vice chairmen, B. M. Hedrick; Walter B. Fulton, Carl A. Marshall, Edgar W. Pumphrey, Richard A. Roseberry, Mrs. Francis Harris, Mrs. A. J. Webb, Mrs. Mary Morris Lockwood, Mrs. J. B. Lowell, Mrs. Charles B. Jewell, Mrs. Lora B. Sanderson, William P. Ames, Alvah H. Brooks, John J. Clarkson, Ray R. Cogswell, William C. Crossman, Louis C. Carl, William A. Coates, Dewey J. Edwards, Dr. J. B. Gould, J. Foster Hagan, Lawrence Michael, Hugh McCaffrey, Herbert H. Porter, J. R. Rose, Luther Strobel, S. H. Williamson, S. H. Yorkdale, Mrs. George F. Cook, Mrs. Herbert Coward, Mrs. S. J. Hammersley, Mrs. Frances M. Mabry, Mrs. Eva Fay Pumphrey, Mrs. Mary Poole, Mrs. A. I. Richmond, Mrs. J. E. Spaulding, Mrs. Ruth Starkweather, Mrs. Harold Stelle, Mrs. F. H. Thompson, Mrs. Grace Stephenson, White, Mrs. S. H. Williamson, and Mrs. M. E. Whittaker.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Nellie Custis School will hold its first meeting of the fall and winter season tonight at 8 o'clock in the school auditorium.

Following a short business session a reception will be held in honor of the two new members of the school faculty, Miss Meta Glascock, who becomes principal, and Miss Virgie Warner. The two new members were members of the faculty last year at the Mount Vernon Elementary School at Potomac.

Raiding the home of William Washington, colored, at East Arlington early yesterday morning, Officers Harry L. Woodyard and Ray Cobean seized 2 gallons of alleged liquor. Washington was taken to the Arlington County Jail pending a hearing today before Police Judge Harry R. Thomas.

The Ashton Heights Citizens Association will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night in the Woman's Clubhouse, on Clarendon avenue, at 8 o'clock. All members are requested to attend, as the annual election of officers will be held.

With the view of protecting the future development of the town of Falls Church, Mayor John F. Bethune has appointed a special committee to make a study of the needs of the community with regard to zoning and building regulations. The committee is also instructed to investigate the signboard situation with a view of bringing it under the control of the town authorities.

Awaiting the committee's report, the town council has voted not to approve any applications for permits for the erection of business property upon sites now occupied as residences or on vacant land within the present residential district.

According to an announcement last night made by A. C. Putnam, president of the Clarendon Fire Department, A. J. Porter, contractor, will be notified today to resume operations on the new firehouse on Lorton avenue in Clarendon.

"The department suspended work on the building at the request of the county board of supervisors with the understanding that they would have the county engineer assist in finding a more suitable location in view of the opposition. Nothing has been done and new quarters must be obtained for the equipment," said President Putnam.

"If the supervisors still refuse to give to the Clarendon Fire Department the new American La France engine, which has been ordered, it will then be up to the citizens to take action," he concluded.

The Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association will hold its monthly meeting tomorrow night as guests of the Fairfax Fire Department at their firehouse in Fairfax.

The Rev. Ira P. Harbaugh, pastor of the Ballston Christian Church, announces that the dedication services will be conducted Sunday, September 22.

Candidates for the George Mason High School football team will begin practice tomorrow afternoon on the school field under the direction of J. F. Wilson, the new athletic director who last year coached the Washington Lee High School team.

Mrs. Francis Wallis, regent of the Francis Wallis Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Arlington County, has entered her strong protest to the granting of any permit for the establishment in Rosslyn along the Lee highway for the storage of gasoline and oil requiring large tanks.

"For many years much has been said about the unsightly conditions to the approach to Virginia at the Rosslyn end of the Key Bridge. I can conceive nothing that will add more to the unsightly conditions than to permit the erection of towering steel tanks which will be in full view from the Washington end of the Key Bridge," Mrs. Wallis said.

The application for a permit from the Sun Oil Co. of Philadelphia to establish a plant on the Lee boulevard at Rosslyn comes before the Arlington County Zoning Commission at its meeting Friday night. The opposition raised by Mrs. Wallis adds to the many protests being filed with the commission. It was learned last night that the Arlington-Fairfax Volunteer Firemen's Association has sent a resolution adopted by the association opposing the project to the secretary.

The town council of the town of Potomac will hold its semimonthly meeting in the town hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock, with Mayor Walter B. Fulton presiding.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

"I'VE been suspicious of this new money ever since it came out," said Luella when she heard that Congress may recall the abbreviated currency.

"You'd rather have larger bills?"

"The larger the better," she answered. "With the smaller bills I feel poverty stricken. The larger bills are more like real money."

As if size has anything to do with legal tender.

"What has that to do with money?"

"This," she confessed. "Money disappears faster in a large city than it does in a small town. You know how it is when I get on Fifth avenue, New York? I never have the same trouble in Clarendon or Cherrydale, Va."

* * * *

THERE was something to the observation.

"What would you suggest?" asked Stacy Stillweather, the statistician, joining us on the veranda.

"I should think, if Congress wants to do the thing right," answered Luella, "that they'd send the small money to the small towns and keep the big bills in the big cities."

An idea, indeed.

"What about the counterfeiters?" asked Stacy.

"Tush!" she ejaculated. "The big department stores know how to handle counterfeiters."

"They do? How?"

"Detectives are hidden in the various departments," explained Luella, letting us in on one of the secret service secrets. "Whenever they see anybody loitering too long at the counters, why, they——"

"Shoplifters or counterfeiters," said Luella, "it's all the same. Six of one and seven or eight of the other. Counterfeiters is merely the German name for it."

* * * *

"THE German name for what?" we asked, in unison.

"What we were talking about?" retaliated Luella.

"Search me," I said, admitting defeat.

"About the new money, and counterfeiting," spoke up Stacy.

"To be sure," went on Luella, "and the department stores. Which reminds me. I saw a hat I liked, and if you'll give me one of those old bills—not one of the smaler ones——"

"I mean a $20 bill," flashed Luella.

"What d'ye call the small money?" I asked, for my own information.

"The kind you usually give me, the ones and the twos," she chided, fumbling the case note, crushing it into her handbag and going into the garden.

DR. WILBUR TO MAKE DEDICATION SPEECH

NEW BUILDINGS FINISHED

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 15.—Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior, will deliver the chief address at the dedication of the new medical science building of the University of Virginia on the morning of Tuesday, October 22.

The new building was constructed at a cost of more than $1,400,000. Part of it was occupied last spring, but now the entire five-story structure is in use.

The Medical Society of Virginia will be holding its annual session in Charlottesville in connection with the dedication of the new medical group. This meeting will continue through Wednesday and Thursday, October 23 and 24.

Every medical school in the United States has been invited to send a delegate to the dedication, and the thousands of alumni of the medical department of the University of Virginia have been invited to return. The enrollment of delegates will be the first event of the dedicatory program.

Greetings will be presented by Dr. Wilburt Cornell Davison, dean of medicine at Duke University. Then a statement will be made by Dr. John Carroll Flippin, dean of medicine.

Dr. Wilbur's address will close the morning meeting. Before Dr. Wilbur was appointed Secretary of the Interior he was president of Stanford University. From 1911 to 1916 he was dean of the medical school at Stanford, and before 1911 he held several positions as a teacher of physiology.

Three distinguished medical alumni of the University of Virginia will speak at the luncheon that will be served in Memorial Gynasium at 1 p. m. Dr. Harvie E. Jordan, assistant dean of medicine, will preside.

Addresses will be made by Dr. J. Bolling Jones, of Petersburg, Va., president of the Medical Society of Virginia; by Dr. Hugh S. BLUE RIDGE SCHOOL HAS 155 ENROLLED Episcopal Institution Was Established in Virginia 18 Years Ago.

ADMISSION IS SELECTIVE

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 15.—The Blue Ridge Industrial School, established 18 years ago by the Episcopal Church, under the leadership of Archdeacon Frederick W. Neve, of Ivy, this county, has opened with an enrollment of 125 boarding pupils and 30 day pupils.

The school, which is industrial and vocational as well as educational, is located in Bacon Hollow, Greene County, about 23 miles northwest of this city.

The institution was opened January, 1910, with 12 boarding and 20 day pupils, four employes and one building, Neve Hall. Today there are 155 pupils, 19 employes, 600 acres of land and 19 buildings. The property is valued at $110,000.

Admission Is Restricted.

Admission to the school is restricted to country children of limited means, preferably from isolated mountainous sections. The course of instruction is from primary through high school, accredited under the Virginia State Board of Education. The school was in operation four years before a pupil was ready for high school.

In June, 1918, the school had its first graduates—two girls from the neighborhood. At the present time the graduates number 47. Of the 29 girls graduated up to 1928, eight are married, six teaching, two nursing, six in college or university, three in business, one dead and three at home. Of the thirteen boy graduates, three are at college or university, one a student for the ministry, two farming, three in business and four teaching.

In the main, splendid roads lead to the school. The road from the Albemarle County line at Nortonsville to the Spotswood Trail has been taken over by the State, and from that main highway a new road, about a mile and a half in length, is under construction by the county.

Handicraft Work Taught.

Handicraft work is taught pupils of the school. Recently children at the school sent Mrs. Herbert Hoover a rug they had made. The first lady of the land expressed to the donors her interest in the school and promised that she would pay a visit to the institution some time this fall.

Among the directors of the institution are Dr. Robert M. Bird, professor of chemistry at the University of Virginia; Archdeacon Neve, of Ivy; the Rev. W. Roy Mason and Homan W. Walsh, of this city.

BIG DOCKET FACED BY FAIRFAX COURT

Session of Three Weeks to Open Today; Petit Juries Meet Tomorrow.

TEACHERS ARE CHOSEN

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon 919-J-1.

The September term of the Fairfax County Circuit Court opens this morning with a heavy schedule. The docket is crowded with both criminal and civil cases. The court will last but three weeks because of the necessity for Judge Howard B. Smith to open court in Prince William County on the first Monday in October. The grand jury has been summoned for this morning, the civil and criminal juries for tomorrow morning. In addition to grand jury cases, there will be a number of appeals taken from the decisions of the justices of the peace.

The meeting of the McLean School and Civic League, which was postponed on account of the fair, will be held tonight. The new faculty has been invited to attend.

The fire which destroyed the Fairfax garage Saturday night was still smoldering late Sunday evening. Portions of the brick walls and the remains of the automobiles which were in the garage are all that is left of one of the largest business enterprises of the county.

The new fire siren, which had recently been erected on this building by the members of the Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department at a cost of more than $600, was also destroyed. This leaves the town without adequate warning of other fires in Fairfax and vicinity.

The remains of the building have been roped off pending an investigation by the State fire inspector and insurance department.

OFFER FOR ROCKVILLE CHURCH SITE TAKEN

Montgomery County Battle Over Land Ended by Sale Agreement.

$35,000 PRICE REACHED

Another obstacle blocking the erection of the courthouse at Rockville offer of the board of county comgregation of the Rockville Presbyterian Church accepted the $35,000 offe rof the board of county commissioners for its church site.

A considerable controversy had arisen concerning the purchase price of the church site. The board of commissioners had offered $30,000 for the site, but the church had demanded $42,000. At a conference of the church trustee board and the county commissioners last week a compromise price of $35,000 was agreed upon. This price was accepted by the congregation and now needs only formal approval of the commission board at its meeting this week.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

FOX

"FOUR DEVILS." Fox picture, with talking sequences, directed by F. W. Murnau, from the story by Herman Bank. Janet Gaynor starred, supported by Mary Duncan, Charles Morton, Barry Norton, Farrell MacDonald and Nancy Drexel. Reviewed Saturday night by Mary Porter Russell.

One of the things this production will do for you is to make 99 per cent of the circus films you have seen, or are likely to see, appear by comparison more coarse and tawdry. It is a tender sort of picture, as gentle as little Janet Gaynor, who plays the leading role, and as beautiful as the love between her and her three companions and the old clown who is their adopted father.

The Four Devils, as the young trapeze artists are known, are disclosed to us first in their childhood, a tragic childhood, made unbearable by the brutality of their trainer, Anders Randolf. Jack Parker, Dawn O'Day, Philippe de Lacey and Anita Tremault are perfect in the children's roles, and the sequence is enacted with piercing pathos.

After the clown has rescued the orphans and they are shown grown to young manhood and womanhood, there comes a feeling that the story is just beginning and that the earlier scenes might have been left unreeled, yet there is probably no other way that the bond between the five could have been made so clear. They are successful young performers now and the old man rejoices with them in a new-found happiness. Marian and Louise love and are loved by Charles and Adolf. Then a countess, glancing up at Charles' splendid body as he performs his daring feats through space, decides to find relief from the boredom of life at the expense of Marian's broken heart. Charles succumbs, repents and, after the near-death of Marian, is forgiven. And that is all.

The last scene is reminiscent of "Sunrise," in which Miss Gaynor played a somewhat similar role, although the film is by no means comparable in power to that masterpiece of the same director. As was the case in the earlier work, Mr. Murnau has contrived to make the reactions of his characters natural in spite of their suddenness and to hold the spectator's sympathy for the erring male even while demanding pity for the girl he is deserting.

Charles Morton, as Charles, comes close to Miss Gaynor in excellence, though neither of them is helped by the last two reels of audibility. The latter, in particular, is in dire need of a bigger and better voice. Nancy Drexel and Barry Norton complete the quartet of gymnasts, and Mary Duncan applies her vamping tactics with a heavy, heavy hand. A word must be added for the camerman, whose shots from above of the circus interior are exceptionally fine.

The first of the widely heralded Fanchon and Marco revues, "Sweethearts," holds the stage for the week as a result of the new house policy. It is a closely knit, fast moving production which goes from a gorgeous opening ensemble number to a glittering finale, featuring in the interim Dorothy and Harry Dixon, Mme. Iki, the Aber twins, Tilyou and Roger and some others whose names I didn't get in a varied assortment of song and dance. You will be glad to know that John Irving Fisher is back, with a nice coat of tan—unless that was make-up—and that he didn't forget how to play the piano. He divides honors with Nat Nazarro, jr., who dances and leads the stage band.

There is a sound newsreel with a few words by Shearer the Great, and the orchestra, as in the good old days, gives the last movement of Dvorak's New World Symphony as an overture from the pit.

COLUMBIA

"THE MYSTERIOUS MR. FU MANCHU." A Paramount talking adaptation of a story by Sax Rohmer, featuring Warner Oland, Jean Arthur and O. P. Heggie. Directed by Rowland V. Lee. Reviewed Saturday afternoon (second week) by W. A. Whitney.

Warner Oland, to whom is entrusted the impersonation of the mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu, admirably portrays the learned Oriental doctor. So masterfully handled is the part that one feels a slight pang of regret at Fu's death on the near-culmination of a desire inspired not so much from an inborn hate of the English, as from an earnest hope that the deaths of those connected with the killing of his loved ones might atone for the tragedy.

Assisting Dr. Fu in his insidious machinations is an English girl, very acceptably played by Jean Arthur, who, under hypnotic influence of Fu, delivers the blood-spotted dragon, the notice of impending death of the recipient.

The detective, under whose guidance the mystery is solved, is well played by O. P. Heggie. William Austin, as a secretary, offers most of the comedy relief and Nell Hamilton, with Jean Arthur, furnish the love interest.

Throughout the picture the subtlety of this male Oriental Borgia is aided and abetted by the sumptuous intricacy of Fu's residence in the Limehouse district.

The addition of sound and dialogue to the picture, while not seriously obtruding upon the action, can not be said greatly to enhance the excellent histrionic efforts of the cast.

For subsidiaries are a Metro-Movietone presentation of Vincent Lopez's "On the Air," in which are featured three well-executed piano solos; a synchronized trailer on "The Hollywood Revue," with Lloyd Hamilton officiating; a Metro-Moviestone sound comedy, "Unaccustomed as We Are," featuring Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, and releases of M-G-M-International and Fox Movietone newsreels.

A prelude composed of a medley of popular numbers, played by the Columbia Orchestra, under the leadership of Claude Burrows, completes the program.

"THE UNHOLY NIGHT." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer all-talking mystery play adapted from Ben Hecht's "The Doomed Regiment," featuring Dorothy Sebastian, Ernest Torrence and Roland Young under the direction of Lionel Barrymore. Reviewed Saturday afternoon by Don B. Reed.

Real mystery, a clever plot and a thoroughly capable cast of actors and actresses combine to make "The Unholy Night" well worth the while of any one at all inclined to chills and thrills. Even those who do not care especially for the mysteries will find many a laugh tucked away in this film, while the acting throughout is forceful ehough to make the patrons forget some of the impossibilities of the story.

There is much detail in "The Unholy Night," and each little effect shows the hand of Lionel Barrymore, the director. The play holds interest almost to the fadeout and there is never an instant when the picture may be said to drag. It is cleverly handled throughout; in fact, ranks with the best of the mystery dramas which the movies have produced.

Headed by Roland Young, stage actor of note, the cast includes Ernest Torrence, Dorothy Sebastian, John Miljan, Natalie Moorhead, Richard Tucker, John Loder, Phillo Strange and a number of others who have appeared frequently in notable pictures.

The story of "The Unholy Night," taken from "The Doomed Regiment," by Ben Hecht, deals with four murders committed during a London fog, all the victims being officers of a wartime regiment. An attempt to strangle Lord Montague (Roland Young) fails and thereafter the action concerns Sc
